Organising Knowledge

in a Global Society Philip Hider, Ross Harvey, 2008-06-01 Organising Knowledge in a Global Society updates the successful first edition which has been widely used as an introduction to the field of information organisation both in Australia and overseas. The work reflects current practice and trends paying particular attention to how libraries and other information services provide intellectual access to digital information resources through metadata. In this revision the various information organisation components of the Web 2.0 phenomenon are discussed including social tagging and folksonomies. The new edition also covers the latest developments in metadata standards such as Resource Description and Access and information retrieval systems such as the increasing support for faceted navigation. Examples and case studies have been updated throughout.

Managing Information, 2000 Organizing Knowledge J. E. Rowley, John Farrow, 2000 Part 1 Information basics explores the nature of information and knowledge and their incorporation into documents. Part 2 Records focuses specifically on electronic databases for accessing print or electronic media. Part 3 Access explores the range of tools for accessing information resources and covers interfaces, indexing and searching, languages, classification, thesauri and catalogue and bibliographic access points. Finally Part 4 Systems describes the contexts through which knowledge can be organized and retrieved including OPACs, the Internet, CD-ROMs, online search services and printed indexes and documents.

Knowledge Organization, 2004 The Organization of Information Arlene G. Taylor, 2004 The extensively revised and completely updated second edition of this popular textbook provides LIS practitioners and students with a vital guide to the organization of information. After a broad overview of the concept and its role in human endeavors, Taylor proceeds to a detailed and insightful discussion of such basic retrieval tools as bibliographies, catalogs, indexes, finding aids, registers, databases, major bibliographic utilities and other organizing entities. After tracing the development of the organization of recorded information in Western civilization from 2000 B.C.E. to the present, the author addresses topics that include encoding standards, MARC, SGML and various DTDs, metadata, description, access and access control, verbal subject analysis including controlled vocabularies and ontologies, classification theory and methodology, arrangement and display and system design.

International Labour Documentation International Labour Organization, Bureau of Library and Information Services, 2001 Introduction to Cataloging and Classification Arlene G. Taylor, David Peter Miller, 2006 Offers a practical guide to the world of cataloguing and classification. This work also addresses such issues as FRBR, Functional Requirements for Bibliographic Records, FAST, Faceted Application of Subject Terminology and the Semantic Web.

Classification Made Simple Eric J. Hunter, 2002 An ability to classify is a fundamental requisite of everyday life. Classification is also a vital element in information management. This established textbook introduces the essentials of classification as used for information storage and retrieval. By adopting a gradual progression from very basic principles and by providing practical examples, it enables the reader to gain a firm grasp of one idea before proceeding to the next. In information work, classification may be used in various ways for coding in computerized systems for the organization of manual and machine readable files and catalogues and for shelf arrangement in libraries and information services It can constitute a basis for the production of alphabetical authority lists of subject terms or thesauri and can be applied to other subject indexing and search techniques The approach adopted here is a wide one and is not limited to classification for one specific purpose This revision takes account of developments that have taken place since the first edition was published Perhaps the most significant event has been the phenomenal growth of the Internet and the World Wide Web and this new edition outlines the significant role that classification can play in the accessing of Internet resources Classification Made Simple provides a useful gateway to more advanced works and the study of specific schemes As an introductory text it will be invaluable to students of information work and to anyone inside or outside the information profession who needs to understand the manner in which classification can be utilized to facilitate and enhance the retrieval process

Library & Information Science Abstracts, 2008 Cataloguing Without Tears Jane Read, 2003-11-30 This work is a guide to the principles of cataloguing for librarians information scientists and information managers It relates theory to practice and includes guidance on subject cataloguing as well as descriptive cataloguing ProLISSA 2002, 2002 Journal of Librarianship and Information Science, 2007

Annals of Library and Information Studies, 2005 American Book Publishing Record, 2006 The New Walford Ray Lester, 2005 Covers 15 broad subject groupings social sciences generic psychology sociology social work politics government law finance accountancy industries business education sport media information and tools for information professionals SRELS Journal of Information Management, 2006
