ABSTRACT

This research, entitled "The Difficulties Encountered by Non-English Department Students in Speaking English", was a study at Faculty of Teacher Training and Education Muhammadiyah University of Mataram. It was conducted to investigate difficulties encountered by Non-English Department students in speaking. The participants were 15 students from the second semester of Indonesian Department Muhammadiyah University of Mataram. It also aims to investigate the factors which are face by Non-English department students in Speaking English. This research used descriptive quantitative approach. Based on the data from test the difficulties encountered by second year student of Indonesian department are first was from grammar aspect, there were 80% of students almost entirely inaccurate expect in stock phrases. Second, fluency aspect, there were 73% speech is very slow and uneven except, for short or routine sentences. Third, it is pronunciation aspect there were 73% of students gross error and very heavy accent make understanding difficult require frequent repetition. Fourth is from vocabulary aspect there were 60% of students their vocabulary limited to basic personal and survival areas. The last it is from comprehension aspect there 53% of students understands only slow, very simple speech on common social and touristic topics, requires constant repetition and rephrasing. Factors were faced by Non-English department student in speaking English there are two factors, from internal factors and external factors. Internal factors such as they are a quite person, they are hard to learn, difficult to remember vocabulary, difficult to pronounce the word, lack of grammatical mastery, they are lary to memorize vocabulary, they are lack of confidence and fear of making mistake. From external factors, they are seldom speaking English in the class and their environment is not used English and they prefer to use their mother tongue.

1. Introduction

English is considered and applied as international language. Since then, it is very popular and has been spoken and learned by almost all people in the world. In Indonesia, English is a very important tool to face the globalization era. More over Indonesia has joined AEC (ASEAN Economic Community). So that, in the application of science obtained from the university should be coupled with the mastery of English. By mastering English language, we can communicate with the world community and increase the science and technology through literature only available in English. In this case, English language learned by people according to purpose is closely related to English for Specific Purpose. As Mackay and Mountford (1978) in Addine (2016: 3) ESP is generally used refer to the teaching of a utilitarian purpose. So the English language is learned to be used in real situations and in accordance with their own expertise or profession. As added by Hutchinson and Waters (1987:6), English becomes the accepted international language of technology and commerce, it creates a new generation of learners.

English for Specific Purpose in Higher education is a compulsory subject. Muhammadiyah university of Mataram also makes English as a compulsory subject for Non-English Department. English in other major or Non-English Department namely English for Specific Purpose. The credits
