

GREENHOUSE STYLES

Greenhouses are available in a variety of styles, each with its own unique characteristics. The most common style is the cold frame, which is a simple structure with a glass top and a wooden frame. Cold frames are used for growing seedlings and small plants, as well as for protecting mature plants from the elements. Another popular style is the lean-to greenhouse, which is attached to the side of a building. Lean-to greenhouses are great for growing vegetables and flowers, as well as for protecting mature plants. A third style is the free-standing greenhouse, which is a separate structure. Free-standing greenhouses are great for growing vegetables and flowers, as well as for protecting mature plants. Finally, there are the more elaborate styles, such as the conservatory and the sunroom. These styles are designed to provide a more comfortable environment for growing plants, and they often feature a glass roof and walls.
