Lorentz A.J. Kox, 2008-09-18 This volume presents a selection of 434 letters from and to the Dutch physicist and Nobel Prize winner Hendrik Antoon Lorentz 1853 1928 covering the period from 1883 until a few months before his death in February 1928 The sheer size of the available correspondence approximately 6000 letters from and to Lorentz preclude a full publication The letters included in this volume have been selected according to various criteria the most important of which is scientific importance A second criterion has been the availability of letters both from and to Lorentz so that the reader can follow the exchange between Lorentz and his correspondent Within such correspondences a few unimportant items dealing with routine administrative or organizational matters have been omitted An exception to the scientific criterion is the exchange of letters between Lorentz and Albert Einstein Max Planck Woldemar Voigt and Wilhelm Wien during World War I these letters have been included because they shed important light on the disruption of the scientific relations during the war and on the political views of these correspondents as well as of Lorentz similar reasons the letters exchanged with Einstein and Planck on post war political issues have been included Biographical sketch Hendrik Antoon Lorentz was born on July 18 1853 in the Dutch town of Arnhem He was the son of a relatively well to do owner of a nursery    The Journal of the Indian Mathematical Society ,1913    The Linguist ,1967    Journal Indian Mathematical Society,1912    Meeresforschung ,1981    Solar Radiation Data from Satellite Images W. Koppelkamm,2015-09-07 In the 18th century the idea of the landscape garden which had originated in England spread all over Europe The geometry of the Baroque park was abandoned in favour of a natural design At the same time the garden became The land of illusion Chinese pagodas Egyptian tombs and Turkish mosques along with Gothic stables and Greek and Roman temples formed a miniature world in which distance mingled with the past The keen interest in a fairy tale China which was manifested not only in the gardens but also in the chinoiseries of the Rococo abated in the 19th century The increasing expansion of the European colonial powers was reflected in new exotic fashions While in England it was primarily the conquest of the Indian subcontinent that captured the imagination for France the occupation of Algiers triggered an Orient inspired fashion that spread from Paris to encompass the entire Continent and found its expression in paintings novels operas and buildings This Orient which could not be clearly defined geographically was characterised by Islamic culture It extended around the Mediterranean Sea from Constantinople to Granada There it was the Alhambra that fascinated writers and architects The Islamic styles seemed especially appropriate for buildings of a secular and cheerful character In contrast to ancient Egyptian building forms which being severe and monumental were preferably used for cemetery buildings prisons or libraries they promised earthly sensuous pleasures The promise of happiness associated with an Orient staged by architectural means was intended to guarantee the commercial success of coffee houses and music halls amusement parks and steam baths But even extravagant summer residences and middle class villas were often built in faux Oriental styles In Brighton the Prince Regent George George IV after 1820 built himself an Indian palace in Bad Cannstatt near Stuttgart a Moorish refuge was erected for W rttemberg s King Wilhelm I and the French town of Tourcoing was the site of the Palais du Congo a bombastic villa in the Indian Moghul style that belonged to a wealthy perfume and soap manufacturer
