Binhammer,2020-04-28 How do the stories we tell about money shape our economies Beginning in the late eighteenth century as constant growth became the economic norm throughout Europe fictional stories involving money were overwhelmingly about loss Novel after novel tells the tale of bankruptcy and financial failure of people losing everything and ending up in debtor s prison of inheritances lost and daughters left orphaned and poor In Downward Mobility Katherine Binhammer argues that these stories of ruin are not simple tales about the losers of capitalism but narratives that help manage speculation of capital s inevitable collapse Bringing together contemporary critical finance studies with eighteenth century literary history Binhammer demonstrates the centrality of the myth of downward mobility to the cultural history of capitalism and to the emergence of the novel in Britain Deftly weaving economic history and formal analysis Binhammer reveals how capitalism requires the novel s complex techniques to render infinite economic growth imaginable She also explains why the novel s signature formal developments owe their narrative dynamics to the contradictions within capital s

form Combining new archival research on the history of debt with original readings of sentimental novels including Frances Burney's Cecilia and Camilla Sarah Fielding's David Simple and Oliver Goldsmith's The Vicar of Wakefield Downward Mobility registers the value of literary narrative in interpreting the complex sequences behind financial capitalism especially the belief in infinite growth that has led to current environmental crises An audacious epilogue arms humanists with the argument that in order to save the planet from unsustainable growth we need to read more novels

Institutional Islamic Economics and Finance Ahsan Shafiq, 2022-03-30 Institutional economics claims that institutions and policies rather than the size of labour force technology or capital investment are pivotal for growth or under development In this regard there are two kinds of institutions external institutions expressed in the form of laws organisations regulations companies banks and the like and internal institutions which are found in the hearts and consciences of individuals Against this backdrop this book acquaints readers with the basic concepts related to institutional economics It then brings to light the theoretical concepts related to the institutional perspectives on Islamic economics particularly highlighting areas where Islamic economic institutions lay at the crossroads with conventional ones The book also reflects upon the organisational arrangements that comply with the basic tenets of Islamic institutional economics Further it brings a collection of real world case studies into discussion to show the models of Islamic institutions that are pragmatic in today's business environment The book contains novel dimensions on the subject includes conceptual debates as well as practical examples and explores hot topics such as waqf and fintech from an Islamic perspective This is the first book to exclusively cover this topic and is written by well known and respected international economists from the field Since the book is written in an accessible style and the concepts are expressed in plain language it will find an audience among academics researchers and students in economics and Islamic economic studies as well as policymakers and professionals engaged in the Islamic finance industry seeking to make their services and products conform to an Islamic institutional perspective
