The Power to Change Geography Diana O'Hehir, 2015-03-08 Writing about poetry Diana Hehir says I think of poetry as harnessed energy as a marvelous way of taking the chaotic emotion the turbulent perception and recreating them as images that are specific definite directed Miraculously when this process works it's one of expansion rather than diminution the fortunate poet can reach out beyond the walls of separate personality into a general air that everyone breathes I think of my own poetry as intense imagistic surreal and personal and try to write about perceptions which have pushed me toward change or renewal For the last six years Diana Hehir has been writing poetry and has had poems published in Antaeus Kayak Poetry Northwest and Southern Poetry Review Originally published in 1979 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905 The Columbia Granger's Guide to Poetry Anthologies William A. Long before Stonewall young Air Force veteran Edward Field fresh from combat in WWII threw himself into New York's literary bohemia searching for fulfillment as a gay man and poet. In this vivid account of his avant-garde years in Greenwich Village and the bohemian outposts of Paris's Left Bank and Tangier where you could write poetry be radical and be openly gay Field opens the closet door to reveal as never been seen before some of the most important writers of his time. Here are young beautiful Susan Sontag sitting at the feet of her idol Alfred Chester who shrewdly plotted to marry her May Swenson and her two loves Paul and Jane Bowles in their ambiguous marriage Frank O'Hara in and out of bed Fritz Peters the anointed son of Gurdjieff and James Baldwin Isabel Miller Patience and Sarah Tobias Schneebaum Robert Friend and many others. With its intimate portraits Field's memoir brings back a forgotten era postwar bohemia bawdy comical romantic sad and heroic. The Geography of Hope David J. Rothman, 1998. Where the Blubird Sings to the Lemonade Springs 1992 a collection of essays is the last book Wallace Stegner published in a long and productive life of thinking and writing about the West. In the Introduction to the book Stegner writes that the West at large is hope's native home the youngest and freshest of America's regions magnificently endowed and with the chance to become something unprecedented and unmatched in the world xv These are inspiring and hopeful words for a man in his 80s and in darker moods in the same book when contemplating for example the desperate foolishness of water policy west of the hundredth meridian Stegner repudiates them saying of the West that neither nostalgia nor boosterism can any longer make a case for it as the geography of hope 98 The phrase the geography of hope is also Stegner s coinage and when he says he can no longer make a case for the American West as its native home he is arguing with himself against himself against himself over the crucial tensions out of which he made his life s work In the end however despite considerable pessimism about our historical cultural and political blunders Stegner did think that people could come to belong to the land where they lived rather than merely owning it even a land as harsh as the West The vitality of his history and criticism and the force of his fiction and teaching about it are testimony to an entire life spent in devotion to that idea A Directory of American Poets and Fiction Writers
