New Greenland:

Phasing Out the Colonial Status of Greenland, 1945-54 Jens Elo Rytter, 2010 With the Constitution of 1953 the colonial status of Greenland came to an end and Greenlanders were granted equal rights as citizens within the Danish realm In 1954 this new arrangement was supported by the UN General Assembly The decision to change Greenland's status was conditioned both by internal and external circumstances In the UN context Danes increasingly felt the strain of being a colonial power and they feared the possibility of future UN interference in Greenlandic affairs Denmark-Greenland in the Twentieth Century Axel Kjær Sørensen, 2007-11-05 This book traces Danish Greenlandic relations in the period 1900-2000 The main trend is the development from a colonial situation in 1900 with a state owned company running nearly all business to an open economy with steadily growing self government for Greenland short of full independence The Danish policy can be described as benevolent but financially the budget was tight until after the second World War the philosophy being that Denmark should neither lose nor gain After the war there was heavy investment to bring Greenland nearer to standards of living comparable to Denmark and substantial subsidies were given make that happen The Greenlanders attitude towards Denmark developed along lines familiar from other examples of decolonisation The first phase of accepting the coloniser was long over now seeking equality with the coloniser was the main aim in their endeavours From 1911 two provincial councils voiced speaking the Greenlanders views and their political influence steadily grew In 1953 Greenland got representation in the Danish parliament The third phase of doing without the coloniser began in the early 1970s when Greenlanders sought home rule status obtained in 1979 In the following twenty years the Home Rule Authority gradually took over nearly all lawmaking and administration and from 2004 a committee has explored ways of giving Greenland a more independent voice in foreign affairs In 2003 the ultimate goal was declared to be full independence Meddelelser Om Grønland, 1915
