Paris Police to Halt Mobs With Portable Barricades

Special to The New York Times.

PARIS, April 20.—Tear gas, smoke bombs and a set of portable barbed-wire barricades to hold mobs in check will be part of the equipment of the "flying riot squads" that the government plans to add to the Paris police force to avoid bloodshed in suppressing disorders.

The project, which is part of a plan to reorganize the Paris police, is a result of the recent disorders in Clichy, which made it desirable to find methods to quell disturbances without using firearms. The matter was submitted by the Minister of the Interior, Marc Dorinoy, to the last Cabinet meeting for discussion.

These flying detachments, whose members are to wear steel helmets, will be able to answer any emergency calls in Paris and its suburbs quickly. Their ultra-modern equipment will also include radio, searchlights and ambulances for the evacuation of wounded.
