Hill, Paolo Forti, 1997 The Lotus Caves, Report on the Elura Cave Temples and the Brahmanical and Jaina Caves in Western India James Burgess, Georg Bühler, 1883 Report on the Elura Cave Temples and the Brahmanical and Jaina Caves in Western India Burgess, 1883 The Lotus Caves Hilary Ford, Rebell ing against the monotonous life of the moon colony two boys go beyond its boundaries and discover a series of caves ruled by a super intelligent plant like being The History of Religion of Wei, Jin, Southern and Northern Dynasty Li Shi, The book is the volume of The History of Religion of Wei Jin Southern and Northern Dynasty among a series of books of Deep into China Histories The earliest known written records of the history of China date from as early as 1250 BC from the Shang dynasty c 1600 1046 BC and the Bamboo Annals 296 BC describe a Xia dynasty c 2070 1600 BC before the Shang but no writing is known from the period The Shang ruled in the Yellow River valley which is commonly held to be the cradle of Chinese civilization However Neolithic civilizations originated at various cultural centers along both the Yellow River and Yangtze River These Yellow River and Yangtze civilizations arose millennia before the Shang With thousands of years of continuous history China is one of the world s oldest civilizations and is regarded as one of the cradles of civilization The Zhou dynasty 1046 256 BC supplanted the Shang and introduced the concept of the Mandate of Heaven to justify their rule The central Zhou government began to weaken due to external and internal pressures in the 8th century BC and the country eventually splintered into smaller states during the Spring and Autumn period These states became independent and warred

with one another in the following Warring States period. Much of traditional Chinese culture, literature and philosophy first developed during those troubled times. In 221 BC Qin Shi Huang conquered the various warring states and created for himself the title of Huangdi or emperor of the Qin, marking the beginning of imperial China. However, the oppressive government fell soon after his death and was supplanted by the longer lived Han dynasty (206 BC–220 AD). Successive dynasties developed bureaucratic systems that enabled the emperor to control vast territories directly. In the 21 centuries from 206 BC until AD 1912, routine administrative tasks were handled by a special elite of scholar officials. Young men well versed in calligraphy, history, literature and philosophy were carefully selected through difficult government examinations. China's last dynasty was the Qing (1644–1912), which was replaced by the Republic of China in 1912 and, in the mainland, by the People's Republic of China in 1949. Chinese history has alternated between periods of political unity and peace and periods of war and failed statehood, the most recent being the Chinese Civil War (1927–1949). China was occasionally dominated by steppe peoples, most of whom were eventually assimilated into the Han Chinese culture and population. Between eras of multiple kingdoms and warlordism, Chinese dynasties have ruled parts or all of China. In some eras, control stretched as far as Xinjiang and Tibet, as at present. Traditional culture and influences from other parts of Asia and the Western world carried by waves of immigration, cultural assimilation, expansion and foreign contact form the basis of the modern culture of China.

Arts of China: Buddhist cave temples; new researches, by T. Akiyama and S. Matsubara

Terukazu Akiyama, 1969 Karst in China Marjorie M. Sweeting, 2012-12-06
The writer has been occupied with karst problems for 50 years and first visited China in 1977 as leader of a Royal Society delegation of British geomorphologists, the first delegation from the UK to visit China since the inauguration of the new China and at the end of the Cultural Revolution. Sweeting 1978 It was clear from that visit that a study of the Chinese karst would help our understanding of the problems of karst development and that many of the geomorphological difficulties which at times had stultified karst thinking in Europe might gain from the Chinese approach and ideas. First, for example, the Chinese karst is in its initial stages much more fluvial in origin than that of the Dinaric karst, which worried European karst geomorphologists such as dry valleys and the debates about karst base levels and the water table have not worried the Chinese so much. The development of the Chinese karst has proceeded from an original fluvially eroded landscape which was later karstified. Secondly, the large area distribution of limestones in China and the spectacular areas of karst compared with the often relatively small areas of karst in Europe have focussed our attention upon the fundamental issues of karstification rather than upon the endless discussions on the origin of the small and less significant landforms in the karst.
