their lives and communities But the views of women and others who were less powerful in these neighbourhoods have often been ignored This study shows the diversity of opinion and tensions and fears that existed In fact many of the poor wanted the authorities to have a bigger role particularly to deal with neighbourhood problems and the personal failings and untrustworthiness of those they saw around them Many people also just wanted better provision of services by the state As well as being a direct challenge to much that has been written about this issue this study is also timely because of its contemporary political relevance Many of the points it makes are important to challenge the idea that comprehending a lost solidarity of working class neighbourhoods is the only way to understand current political developments in those areas It looks at issues such as relationships with the police friendly societies housing compulsory education and the extent to which Labour politicians did or did not represent the views of the poor
