Nonacademic Writing Ann Hill Duin, Craig J.

Hansen, 2013-11-05 In this volume methodological cultural technological and political boundaries felt by writers are analyzed translated and challenged in a way that will appeal to researchers theorists graduate students instructors and managerial audiences Instead of extracting rules from previous research the contributors working from multidisciplinary perspectives describe and analyze the social and technological contexts surrounding nonacademic writing Their essays present a formative rather than summative outlook toward future research on nonacademic writing Collectively these chapters articulate a unique perspective toward nonacademic writing that considers The centrality of emerging communications technologies in nonacademic writing research and the need for a socio technological perspective New technologies reshape the concept of text and significantly impact the writing process and written products in nonacademic settings The relationship between the academy and the workplace A number of chapters challenge us sometimes from opposing perspectives to scrutinize our role as writing educators in preparing students for the workplace Should we support the interests of corporate employers or should we resist those interests Should we enculturate students in workplace writing practices by placing them in these environments or should we examine the tacit knowledge gained by workplace professionals and deliver this via classroom instruction New theory new research agendas Contributors from diverse fields offer new theoretical lenses or use established lenses in innovative ways expanding the agenda for nonacademic writing research This volume represents the vision the social landscape demands for research and pedagogy in nonacademic writing

Theorizing Composition Mary Kennedy, 1998-06-25 The last 25 years have witnessed extraordinary growth in the academic specialization variously described as composition studies or rhetoric and composition What was noticeable about the field in its infancy was a preoccupation with practice a lack of emphasis on theory and an exclusive reliance on the writing process As its disciplinary status has grown the field has become far more theoretical Composition studies has expanded its focus reconceptualized the writing process and embraced a wide range of critical perspectives The result of this change is that terms such as poststructuralism social construction gender and genre which were largely unknown in 1965 now dominate discussion This reference book is a guide to the multiplicity of theories that have emerged to form the disciplinary foundation of composition studies The volume consists of 66 entries each of which is written by an expert contributor and focuses on a particular theory or group of theories While the entries show how various individuals have contributed to theoretical movements very few concentrate on the work of a single theorist Each entry first provides a critical summary of a particular theory or group of theories including key elements basic concepts and claims and information about seminal or particularly influential works It then reviews the theory's critical reception in composition studies and discusses its significance in the field The bibliography at the end of each entry lists primary texts and major scholarship related to the theory and provides additional suggestions for further reading The volume closes with a selected bibliography of important works
