New Frontiers In Cognitive Aging:

New Frontiers in Cognitive Aging Roger A. Dixon, Lars Bäckman, Lars-Göran Nilsson, 2004 With an ever increasing population of aging people in the western world it is more crucial than ever that we try to understand how and why cognitive competence breaks down with advancing age why do some people follow normal patterns of cognitive change while others follow a path of progressive decline with neurodegenerative diseases such as Alzheimer's What can be done to prevent cognitive decline or to avoid neurodegenerative diseases The answers if they come will not emerge from research within one discipline but from work being done across a range of scientific and medical specialities This volume brings together leading experts from a range of fields studying cognitive aging including neuroscience pharmacology health genetics sensory biology and epidemiology Unlike other books in this area this book is more about new frontiers than past research and accomplishments Recently cognitive aging research has taken several new directions linking with and benefiting from rapid technological and theoretical advances in these neighbouring disciplines This book provides unique interdisciplinary coverage of the topic With each chapter including commentaries from specialists in related fields the book provides an integrative study of the topic For those within the fields of psychology cognitive neuroscience and geriatrics this volume will make an important contribution in furthering our understanding of a problem that affects us all

Handbook of the Psychology of Aging K Warner Schaie, Sherry L. Willis, 2010-12-21 The Handbook of the Psychology of Aging Seventh Edition provides a basic reference source on the behavioral processes of aging for researchers graduate students and professionals It also provides perspectives on the behavioral science of aging for researchers and professionals from other disciplines The book is organized into four parts Part 1 reviews key methodological and analytical issues in aging research It examines some of the major historical influences that might provide explanatory mechanisms for a better understanding of cohort and period differences in psychological aging processes Part 2 includes chapters that discuss the basics and nuances of executive function the history of the morphometric research on normal brain aging and the neural changes that occur in the brain with aging Part 3 deals with the social and health aspects of aging It covers the beliefs that individuals have about how much they can control various outcomes in their life the impact of stress on health and aging and the interrelationships between health disparities social class and aging Part 4 discusses the emotional aspects of aging family caregiving and mental disorders and legal capacities in older adults Contains all the main areas of psychological gerontological research in one volume Entire section on neuroscience and aging Begins with a section on theory and methods Edited by one of the fathers of gerontology Schaie and contributors represent top scholars in gerontology

Memory and Aging Moshe Naveh-Benjamin, Nobuo Ohta, 2012-05-04 Current demographical patterns predict an aging worldwide population It is projected that by 2050 more than 20% of the US population and 40% of the Japanese population will be older than 65 A dramatic increase in research on memory and aging has emerged to understand the age related changes in memory since the ability to learn new information and retrieve previously learned information is essential for successful aging and allows older adults to adapt to changes in their environment self concept and social roles This volume represents the latest psychological research on different aspects of age related changes in memory Written by a group of leading international researchers its chapters cover a broad array of issues concerning the changes that occur in memory as people grow older including the mechanisms and processes underlying these age related memory changes how these changes interact with social and cultural environments and potential programs intended to increase memory performance in old age Similarly the chapters draw upon diverse methodological approaches including cross cultural extreme group experimental designs longitudinal designs assessing intra participant change and computational approaches and neuroimaging assessment Together they provide converging evidence for stability and change in memory as people grow older for the underlying causes of these patterns as well as for the heterogeneity in older adults performance Memory and Aging is essential reading for researchers in memory cognitive aging and gerontology
