New Guinea Journeys:

New Guinea Journeys Jack McCarthy, 1970 Beyond Fear Joel P. Kramer, 2001 A Harrowing Journey across New Guinea through rivers swamps jungle and the most remote mountains in the world The Last Men Iago Corazza, Greta Ropa, 2008 Papua New Guinea the second largest island in the world after Greenland is a land where complexity reigns The extreme diversity of natural environments is reflected in a fragmentation of the people languages customs and traditions that is unlike any other country on Earth It is an ethnic kaleidoscope a mosaic of languages and cultures slightly more than seven million inhabitants with Papua New Guinea and Irian Jaya combined speak almost one thousand distinct languages comprising almost a fifth of all the languages spoken on the planet Papua New Guinea not only hosts the last cannibals on Earth a topic already much written about but more importantly it is also the undisputed home of the world's last men Here in pockets of prehistory hidden from time and by nature there still survives something of original man who is required to expend all his efforts every day to resolve the problems of food and survival This volume which was written by two travelers and photographers who are experts in reporting from the ends of the Earth Iago Corazza and Greta Ropa and contains an introduction by anthropologist Nicola Pagano is dedicated to this heritage of humanity which will probably be unable to resist the advancement of modernization This is a work that describes daily life the difficulties of survival the magnificent and at times hostile environment the history and the biological characteristics of the animals and vegetation all with the immediacy of a documentary and the directness of a journalistic report BOOK JACKET Beyond Fear Joel P. Kramer, 1995 The island of New Guinea has long been a land shrouded in mystery living up to its ominous reputation as the Land of the Unexpected When Joel Kramer and Aaron Lippard two young explorers from Salt Lake City Utah set out on their own to cross the entire island of New Guinea without the use of motors almost everyone said it was impossible and that they would surely die To fulfill their dream Kramer and Lippard must depart from Wewak on the north side of the island and travel in a tiny inflatable kayak over remote rivers and swamps and hike over rugged interior mountains covered in dense jungle They must face ferocious man eating crocodiles that can sneak up on and ravage a man in a death twirl in a matter of seconds a relentless onslaught of blood sucking leeches deadly malaria carrying mosquitoes and black flies raging whitewater rivers and whirlpools and a Stone Age tribe of cannibals before they reach their destination of Daru on New Guinea's southern coast The young men begin their journey as complete strangers Learning to travel with one another under such extreme conditions at times seems less bearable to them than the chronic life or death situation at hand However what they learn about themselves one another and the human capacity for survival will change them indelibly and take them to an extraordinary emotional and physical place beyond their fears Intersecting Journeys Ellen Badone, Sharon R. Roseman, 2010-10-01 The appeal of sacred sites remains undiminished at the start of the twenty first century as unprecedented numbers of visitors travel to Lourdes Rome Jerusalem Santiago de Compostela and even Star Trek conventions Ethnographic analysis of the
