With facilities not to the university community through its University Programs Branch. Located in the Educational Missions Division, this office coordinates programs important to NASA's research and development mission. They provide an international approach to developing a strong, mutually beneficial relationship between both NASA and the university community.

In this issue of Space, a selection two of the various programs are highlighted. These details will create additional programs.

The Summer Faculty Fellowship Program

Each summer since 1966 NASA has awarded summer and engineering faculty fellowships to research scientists at a total research facility. These are a scholarship toward their interests in astronautics with a minor stipend. They are awarded to senior university scientists and engineers. NASA hopes the program encourages interaction of these with university researchers and faculty with NASA's research and development activities. The program is open to all NASA's research and development facilities. Faculty members are eligible for the Summer Faculty Fellowship Program. Graduate Student Research Program

This program offers six college professors a fellowship program in which they and students in selected areas of study at an academic institution in research in a NASA field center. Applicants must submit a proposal for the course of study to be followed. Faculty members are then selected into the program on the basis of their qualifications, and the quality of the research in their field. The program was initiated in 1967 and provides the same with support in a field center of 10 years or what they need for additional support.

In addition for the Graduate Student Research Program is published annually. It provides details on how to apply for the program, where to apply, and what areas of research are available in the various NASA field centers.

New Letters Winter 1986 87:

Of Memory and Desire Gladys Swan, 1989-08-01 These eleven compelling stories reveal the interplay and varying hues of two basic elements of human experience: memory and desire. Gladys Swan's characters are frequently forced to shed their illusions as they struggle to shape their lives. The title story, like many of the others in the collection, has as its backdrop the beautiful but sometimes harsh landscape of the American Southwest. There a reclusive farmer known as Goat Man takes in a young Mexican boy as his companion. When the greed of a tax collector and the complicity of a community destroy Goat Man, the boy vanishes into the night but returns in the form of a legend, a reminder to the residents of the valley of their changing, crueler world. In another story, a traveling carnival breaks down when a sandstorm does final damage to the dreams of the company, and a tired, almost defeated woman attempts to regroup and continue what has been so hopefully called Carnival for the Gods. An older couple, carrying their Jewish past to a Land of Promise, discovers instead an alien territory and must struggle from day to day, one leaning to the past, the other inclining toward an unattainable vision of the future. In The Ink Feather, a small, lonely girl, witness to endless quarrels between her mother and her much older brother, draws comfort from the world of her dolls and the prospect of adventure outside the mist-covered windows of her house. In Getting an Education, a diffident young woman, trying to be a student and to discover what she ought to be learning, finds insight in the details of the lives around her, especially the secretive, eccentric existence of one of her professors. A widowed grandmother in Black Hole is impregnated during a chance encounter with a nameless stranger and shocks her family when she determines to give birth to and raise her child. Like that grandmother, all of the characters in these fictions, whether from the comfortable middle class or the fringes of society, are at odds with themselves and their world. It is Gladys Swan's special gift that she can so seamlessly depict the particular terrors and wonders of their lives. This is a mesmerizing collection. The Road to Peace

Ernie Regehr, Simon Rosenblum, 1988-01-01 In 1988, as the Berlin Wall began to quake and the United States and the Soviet Union prepared to slash their nuclear arsenals, Canada's government remained firmly tied to a Cold War vision of the world. In this book, Regehr and Rosenblum assessed the international strategic situation at the very moment that the superpowers' nuclear standoff began to melt away. Against the backdrop of significant undertakings to halt the drift towards annihilation, the authors find much to criticize in Canadian defence policy, complicity in reckless American war-fighting strategies, undue adherence to organizations such as NATO and NORAD whose justifications were fast disappearing, a retrograde approach to defending Arctic sovereignty. The Road to Peace is a compelling document that vividly conveys the heady atmosphere of the Cold War's apogee. Journal of Women's History Guide to Periodical Literature, 1992. Gayle V. Fischer has produced a terrifically useful volume that no research library should be without. The Journal of American History, an indispensable resource to finding material on women's history throughout the world. Journal of World History, the work is recommended for its currency, depth of coverage, and scope. Ethnic Forum. As part of its mission to disseminate feminist scholarship and serve as the journal of record for the new area of women's history the Journal of Women's History began a compilation of periodical literature dealing with women's history This volume is drawn from more than 750 journals and includes material published from 1980 through 1990 There are forty subject categories and numerous subcategories The guide lists more than 5 500 articles all are extensively cross listed
