Parallel Trade In Europe:

Parallel Trade in Europe Christopher Stothers,2007-04-02 Shortlisted for the 2008 Young Authors Inner Temple Book Prize Are parallel importers the key to free trade breaking down long established national barriers for the benefit of all Or do they instead just operate in a dubious grey market for their own profit free loading on the investment of innovators and brand owners to the ultimate detriment of everyone Parallel trade is in turn lionised and demonised both in legal commentary and in the mainstream press As one might expect the truth lies somewhere between these extremes Once goods have been manufactured they are put onto the market in one country by the manufacturer Parallel trade occurs when the goods are subsequently transferred to a second country by another party the parallel trader who may be the end consumer The distinguishing feature of parallel trade is that the manufacturer did not intend those particular goods to end up in the second country The goods are normally described in that country as parallel imports or grey market goods The latter term is generally used to suggest that the trade while not exactly black market is not entirely lawful either Understanding how European Community law operates to permit or restrict parallel trade involves exploring a complex matrix of rules from the fields of free movement intellectual property competition and regulatory law including both private and public enforcement regimes Where goods are parallel imported from outside the Community these rules change and new considerations come into play such as obligations arising from the European Economic Area the World Trade Organization and bilateral free trade agreements The experience of Europe which has grappled with the issues on a regional basis for more than four decades provides a fertile source for examination of parallel trade in other jurisdictions Christopher Stothers comprehensive treatment successfully analyses this difficult topic considering both Community and national decisions Parallel Trade in Europe Christopher Stothers,2007-04-02 Shortlisted for the 2008 Young Authors Inner Temple Book Prize Are parallel importers the key to free trade breaking down long established national barriers for the benefit of all Or do they instead just operate in a dubious grey market for their own profit free loading on the investment of innovators and brand owners to the ultimate detriment of everyone Parallel trade is in turn lionised and demonised both in legal commentary and in the mainstream press As one might expect the truth lies somewhere between these extremes Once goods have been manufactured they are put onto the market in one country by the manufacturer Parallel trade occurs when the goods are subsequently transferred to a second country by another party the parallel trader who may be the end consumer The distinguishing feature of parallel trade is that the manufacturer did not intend those particular goods to end up in the second country The goods are normally described in that country as parallel imports or grey market goods The latter term is generally used to suggest that the trade while not exactly black market is not entirely lawful either Understanding how European Community law operates to permit or restrict parallel trade involves exploring a complex matrix of rules from the fields of free movement intellectual property competition and regulatory law including both private and public enforcement regimes Where goods are parallel imported from outside the Community these rules change and new considerations come into play such as obligations arising from the European Economic Area the World Trade Organization and bilateral free trade agreements The experience of Europe which has grappled with the issues on a regional basis for more than four decades provides a fertile source for examination of parallel trade in other jurisdictions Christopher Stothers comprehensive treatment successfully analyses this difficult topic considering both Community and national decisions

Policy Implications of Pharmaceutical Importation for U.S. Consumers

United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation. Subcommittee on Interstate Commerce, Trade, and Tourism,2013 Trade Marks and Free Trade Lazaros G. Grigoriadis,2014-05-06 This book is the first study to examine the issue of the legality of parallel imports of trademarked goods under the most important legal systems on an international level namely under GATT WTO law EU law and the laws of the ten major trading partners of the European Union Part I consists of a general approach to the phenomenon of parallel importation and of a presentation of the theories that have been suggested to resolve the above mentioned issue The rule of exhaustion of rights of which there are three types rule of national regional and international exhaustion of rights is proposed as the most effective instrument to deal with the issue in question Part II examines the question of exhaustion of trademark rights in light of the provisions of GATT WTO Law Part III analyzes the elements of the EU provisions on exhaustion of trademark rights Articles 7 of Directive 2008/95/EC and 13 of Regulation EC 207/2009 and some specific issues relating to the application of these provisions Part IV

presents the regimes of exhaustion of trademark rights recognized in the European Union's current ten most significant trading partners. The book is the first legal study to welcome in light of economic analysis the approach adopted by GATT, WTO law and EU law to the question of the geographical scope of the exhaustion of the trademark rights rule. It includes all the case law developed on an international level on the issue of the legality of parallel imports of trademarked goods and a comprehensive overview of the scientific literature concerning the phenomenon of parallel imports in general and the legality of parallel imports of trademarked goods. All the views expressed in the book are based on the European Court of Justice's most recent case law and that of the courts of the most important trading partners of the European Union. Parallel Trade in Prescription Medicines in the European Union Ian S. Forrester, Anthony Dawes, 2014. In light of the economic reality which is increasingly confirmed by relevant judicial authorities we submit that hindering parallel trade in prescription medicines does not damage patients and national health budgets. It is therefore to be welcomed that both Community and national case law has confirmed that pharmaceutical companies are entitled to adopt measures responding to but not prohibiting or eliminating parallel trade and such measures are not contrary to the EC competition rules. Parallel traders had previously been free riding on case law which referred to sectors and cases that bore no relation to the special features of the European prescription medicines sector. To the extent there is an assumption that parallel trade in Europe safeguards intra brand competition the recent case law does not call this assumption into question on the contrary it confirms it while noting that this assumption is inapplicable to the prescription medicines sector in Europe precisely because of that sector's very specific features. It is therefore to be hoped that the long running obsession of European competition law with parallel trade in prescription medicines may at last be coming to an end. Competition Law of the European Union Van Bael & Bellis, 2021-03-01. This new Sixth Edition of a major work by the well known competition law team at Van Bael the extensive case law in the field of cartels including in relation to cartel facilitation and price signalling important Article 102 rulings concerning pricing and exclusivity including the Post Danmark and Intel judgments as well as standard essential patents the current block exemption and guidelines applicable to vertical agreements including those applicable to the motor vehicle sector developments concerning online distribution including the Pierre Fabre and Coty rulings the current guidelines and block exemptions in the field of horizontal cooperation including the treatment of information exchange the evolution of EU merger control including court defeats suffered by the Commission and the case law on procedural infringements the burgeoning case law related to pharmaceuticals including concerning reverse payment settlements the current technology transfer guidelines and block exemption procedural developments including in relation to the right to privacy access to file parental liability fining methodology inability to pay and hybrid settlements the implementation of the Damages Directive and the first interpretative rulings. As a comprehensive up to date and above all practical analysis of the EU competition rules as developed by the Commission and EU Courts this authoritative new edition of a classic work stands alone. Like its predecessors it will be of immeasurable value to both business persons and their legal advisers Developing the East European Market Business Europe,1966 Marketing in Europe Richard Leslie Townshend Bickers, Richard Townshend Bickers,1971 The Economics of Intellectual Property: Competition and international trade Ruth Towse, R. W. Holzhauer,2002 This authoritative four volume collection presents the most important published articles and papers on the economics of intellectual property a subject that is of increasing interest to both economists and lawyers Interest is growing in the relationship of innovation and knowledge to economic growth as well as the challenges to copyright being posed by the new electronic media International in scope this set should be a valuable source of reference to both economists and lawyers concerned with the rapidly developing field of intellectual property Europe ,1988 Foreign Trade ,1968 Parallel Trade in Pharmaceuticals - - By Jacob Arfwedson , 16 One of the underlying objectives of TRIPS is that it should contribute to the promotion of technological innovation and to the transfer and dissemination of technology to the mutual advantage of producers and users of technological knowledge and in a manner conducive to social and economic welfare and to a balance of rights and obligations Art public safety The discussion on the price of new medicines frequently overlooks the regulatory impact however a large part of the final cost may be attributed to the number and length of compulsory clinical tests as well as to the relative efficiency of the authorities in charge of approving new drugs The European Union In the EU the legal foundation of parallel trade or parallel distribution is found in Articles 30 and 36 of the Treaty of Rome which authorise the free movement of goods and confer the right to control the import of goods by national governments provided the products are not harmful or pose a threat to the public Indeed in the case of certain products the original manufacturer has lost almost all of its domestic sales due to parallel imports 69 This may have far reaching consequences for the employees in the concerned company as pointed out in the IHE survey when most of the sales are represented by re imports employees lose the incentive to market and provide information about the product as the benefit The report identifies four major problems that confirm the importance of the issues already discussed above 1 in view of the illnesses involved the threats of re imports will be greater for the products not covered by the EU regulation therefore the provisions may aggravate the problems it aims at solving 2 the countries in the draft regulation e g Car Pricing in Europe Krish N. Bhaskar,1984 The Economist ,1928 Standard & Poor's Creditweek ,2001 Parallel Importation Under European Union Law Thomas Hays,2004 This work provides an explanation of paralleled importation examining major case law in the EU and elsewhere together with the different strands of law that make up the subject The wide ranging treatment includes cases from Asia Australia North and South America
