Parenthood Game:

New York Magazine, 1989-09-25 New York magazine was born in 1968 after a run as an insert of the New York Herald Tribune and quickly made a place for itself as the trusted resource for readers across the country. With award winning writing and photography covering everything from politics and food to theater and fashion the magazine's consistent mission has been to reflect back to its audience the energy and excitement of the city itself while celebrating New York as both a place and an idea.

Spatialization Takes Command - Metaverse Urbanism Firas Safieddine, 2024-06-01 Metaverse Urbanism is a seminal work that explores the spatial internet and its implications touching on the future of architecture, urbanism and spatial design. The book is structured into five parts beginning with an introduction that provides an overview of the evolution of the internet and the concept of the spatial internet as well as an examination of key topics such as content creation, digital identity, cyberspace, neurotechnology, ecology and new practice models. The second chapter provides readers with some of the jargon current landscape and technosphere enabling them to gain a better understanding of the concepts explored in the book. The third part of the book, Letters from Tomorrow Today, delves into cutting edge topics such as Electrical Ecologies, Media Geology, The Network State, gamified parenthood, technobiophilia, spatiology, augmented browsing, digital graveyards, promptism and mineral intelligence among others. These concepts provide a glimpse into the future of social, economic, technological, cultural and urban phenomena that will shape and will be shaped by the metaverse. The fourth chapter, A Hitchhiker's Guide to Metaverse Urbanism, lays out a blueprint for metaverse cities and puts forward a didactic structure to metaverse urbanism. This section explores topics such as virtual world building, automated urban morphologies, planning the DAO stack, virtual urban economies, data and metaverse lands. Finally, The Gantium City World defines a new concept, the City world, through a specific project that demonstrates a realized example of virtual cities. This project includes 10 neighborhoods with unique designs including Genesis, SAT, Ilios, Kaban, Panthera, Egea, Sena, Khala, Tua, OX, Rei and Noa. The book offers a sophisticated exploration of the metaverse as the natural evolution of the Internet into the Internet of ownership and places. It argues that architects, urbanists and spatial designers shall be the driving force behind metaverse urbanism and that the metaverse is a phygital space that will change everything. The book's comprehensive structure and in-depth exploration of concepts make it an invaluable resource for anyone interested in the future of technology and its impact on urban design.
