Primary Health Care in the Making

U. Laaser,R. Senault,H. Viehues,2012-12-06 Since the historieal conference held in Alma Ata in 1978 it has been possible to observe a reorientation of the medical profession More and more issues of health enter the stage and curative medicine is not just loosing ground but some interest How effective is health education and Whose task is primary pre vention are questions which stimulate great concern and public debate It seems also to be the first time since the last decades of the 19th century that the social dimension of health receives adequate consideration. Thus the recent publication of the so called Black Report on Inequalities in Health Penguin 1982 led to a heated discussion in Great Britain certainly of relevance to many other countries. The 6 years since 1978 are much too short a time to proceed far towards Health for All as the slogan of the World Health Organization puts it but the concepts are spelled out vaguely but convincingly to many of us. It is the right time to discuss first experiences and to move from philosophy to empirical work. This work as it relates to the process evolving since Alma Ata is characterized by participation, cooperation and prevention. Participation because disease concerns only the individual patient, his or her family and immediate social environment while health concerns everyone and should involve everyone. It is a task of the whole of society rather than the domain of a single profession or party.
