Making Of Citizens Young People News And Politics:

The Making of Citizens David Buckingham, 2002-01-04 New book from well known author in media education and editor of Media Education and Culture series formerly UCL now Routledge Examines how television news and popular programmes have affected young people's views of issues such as politics and citizenship Young People and the Future of News Lynn Schofield Clark, Regina Marchi, 2017-09-21 This book examines youth media practices on social media introducing the concept of connective journalism as a precursor to collective political action The Making of Citizens David Buckingham, 2000 Young people in western societies have become increasingly alienated from politics with a steady decline in voting and in membership of political parties as well as increasing dissatisfaction with mainstream political institutions Young people today are less interested in the political environment than any other generation since World War II This text explores the reasons why this phenomenon is symptomatic of a more general decline in the public sphere and in notions of civil virtue and responsibility Or does commercial popular culture play a role in the rising tide of cynicism and political apathy in the young On the other hand postmodernist critics have seen these changes as an instance of the failure of mainstream journalism to remain sensitive to the changing needs and dispositions of the young Political Marketing

Kostas Gouliamos, Antonis Theocharous, Bruce I. Newman, 2013-11-12 A guiding principle in creating Political Marketing has been to examine the ways in which culture politics and society interrelate in the field of political marketing In the course of the book the editors and contributors consider culture as a distinctive concept with transformative capacities that need further and deeper development in the engineering of the political marketing process This may be introduced and consequently lead to broad formulation of a campaign culture Indeed understanding and adapting a broader campaign culture political marketing models may be seen as sets of pathways of key resources resulting in viability in human assets forms of influence class stratification alternative flows of information or networking and intercultural knowledge sharing activity This book consists of 18 chapters which deal with aspects of political marketing and campaign culture Theoretical chapters are found first followed by two chapters that deal with theoretical issues which became a subject of research Next presented are the articles that study aspects of electoral behavior followed by the papers that analyze aspects of nationalism national identity Finally the book concludes with three case studies on various issues in political marketing Misunderstanding News Audiences Eiri Elvestad, Angela Phillips, 2018-04-09 Misunderstanding News Audiences interrogates the prevailing myths around the impact of the Internet and social media on news consumption and democracy The book draws on a broad range of comparative research into audience engagement with news across different geographic regions to provide insight into the experience of news audiences in the twenty first century From its inception it was imagined that the Internet would benignly transform the nature of news media and its consumers There were predictions that it would for example break up news oligarchies improve plurality and diversity through news personalisation create genuine social solidarity online and increase political awareness and participation among citizens However this book finds that while mainstream news media is still the major source of news the new media environment appears to lead to greater polarisation between news junkies and news avoiders and to greater political polarisation The authors also argue that the dominant role of the USA in the field of news audience research has created myths about a global news audience which obscures the importance of national context as a major explanation for news exposure differences Misunderstanding News Audiences presents an important analysis of findings from recent audience studies and in doing so encourages readers to re evaluate popular beliefs about the influence of the Internet on news consumption and democracy in the West Being a Young Citizen in Estonia Anne Kaun,2013 The book gives an intriguing insight into how young people in Estonia twenty years after the establishment of democracy perceive their own role as citizens It does so in a theoretical framework that stresses the embeddedness of the civic experiences in a media dominated environment thus closely linking civic and media experiences Based on the analysis of both qualitative interview data and a relatively new method of using the internet as a complementary tool for engaging with open ended diaries the study explores the extent to which young citizens experience the media as being interwoven with their everyday lives and in fact constitutive of their social reality as citizens With its particular focus on young Estonians i e on a generation that has been brought up in a context of rapid political economic and social change and that is well known for its fascination with new communication technologies the book is a valuable contribution to the growing international research on media and civic experiences

Children, Media, and Technology Erica Scharrer,2025-04-02 An accessible introduction to children media and technology that centers questions of access diversity equity and inclusion to provide a timely and much needed text for communication and media studies students and scholars This book covers several long standing as well as contemporary issues and controversies pertaining to media and youth such as violence cyberbullying and online harassment body image disturbances and beauty norms and responses to increasingly sophisticated marketing strategies It also fully explores the ways in which media and technology use enriches the lives of children and teens and empowers them with positive implications for their sense of self learning and education sociality friendships and respect for others and knowledge of and action in the world around them In each of these lines of inquiry up to date theory and research findings relevant to diverse young media users and questions of access equity representation and inclusion make this a distinct approach to enhance students understanding of children media and technology This is an essential text for students of Media and Communication Studies taking courses such as Children and Media Children Teens and Media and Children Adolescents and Media as well as similar classes being taught in related departments From Public Service Broadcasting to Public Service Media Gregory Ferrell Lowe,Jo Bardoel,2007 The core challenge facing public service broadcasting today is the transition to public service media This understanding characterised discourse among participants in the RIPE 2006 conference in the Netherlands the theme of which was Public Service Broadcasting in the Multimedia Environment Programmes and Platforms

The contributors in this volume focus attention on issues of strategic concern and tactical importance in addressing the core challenge A defining Etc Children and Media in Times of Conflict and War Dafna Lemish, Maya Götz, 2007 This collection explores the role the media have on children's lives at times of conflict and war illegible chapters offer for the first time a unique and illegible picture of the most current academic work in illegible area The studies approach the topic from illegible angles children's reception meaning making illegible fright reactions to war related news coverage illegible perspectives of their responsibilities for children at a time of war and approaching the illegible of presenting complex new issues to children illegible finally various ways of empowering children through the use of media and with the aid of media education Children and Youth in the Digital Media Culture Ulla Carlsson, 2010 The present Yearbook showcases the Nordic countries and the work being done in the research communities of Denmark Finland Iceland Norway and Sweden The focus rests on children youth and media in a digitized media culture Book jacket If Kids Could Vote Sally Sugarman, 2007 Preparing children to become citizens of a democracy requires recognition of the different ways in which children learn about politics Kids in the United States currently spend most of their lives in controlled situations such as schools where the dependency they experience in their homes is reinforced Besides teachers books films television and video games influence how children think about democracy Interviews and surveys of children during three Presidential elections and two non Presidential years show how some sixth graders in a Vermont town react to the political issues raised in those elections Besides presenting the children's voices Sugarman also examines some aspects of the media and of the school situation to see how they effect the children's thinking Changes that might improve the children's understanding and knowledge of democracy are also suggested This book should be of interest to parents teachers those involved in media literacy popular culture and child development Being and Belonging Katherine Pratt Ewing, 2008-06-12 The terrorist attacks of September 11 2001 instantly transformed many ordinary Muslim and Arab Americans into suspected terrorists In the weeks and months following the attacks Muslims in the United States faced a frighteningly altered social climate consisting of heightened surveillance interrogation and harassment In the long run however the backlash has been more complicated In Being and Belonging Katherine Pratt Ewing leads a group of anthropologists sociologists and cultural studies experts in exploring how the events of September 11th have affected the quest for belonging and identity among Muslims in America for better and for worse From Chicago to Detroit to San Francisco Being and Belonging takes readers on an extensive tour of Muslim America inside mosques through high school hallways and along inner city streets Jen nan Ghazal Read compares the experiences of Arab Muslims and Arab Christians in Houston and finds that the events of 9 11 created a cultural wedge dividing Arab Americans along religious lines While Arab Christians highlighted their religious affiliation as a means of distancing themselves from the perceived terrorist sympathies of Islam Muslims quickly found that their religious affiliation served as a barrier rather than a bridge to social and political integration Katherine Pratt Ewing and Marguerite

Hoyer document the way South Asian Muslim youth in Raleigh North Carolina actively contested the prevailing notion that one cannot be both Muslim and American by asserting their religious identities more powerfully than they might have before the terrorist acts while still identifying themselves as fully American Sally Howell and Amaney Jamal distinguish between national and local responses to terrorism In striking contrast to the erosion of civil rights ethnic profiling and surveillance set into motion by the federal government well established Muslim community leaders in Detroit used their influence in law enforcement media and social services to empower the community and protect civil rights Craig Joseph and Barnaby Riedel analyze how an Islamic private school in Chicago responded to both September 11 and the increasing ethnic diversity of its student body by adopting a secular character education program to instruct children in universal values rather than religious doctrine In a series of poignant interviews the school's students articulate a clear understanding that while 9 11 left deep wounds on their community it also created a valuable opportunity to teach the nation about Islam The rich ethnographies in this volume link 9 11 and its effects to the experiences of a group that was struggling to be included in the American mainstream long before that fateful day Many Muslim communities never had a chance to tell their stories after September 11 In Being and Belonging they get that chance Media International Australia, 2001 Kids Rule! Sarah

Banet-Weiser, 2007-09-03 Sarah Banet Weiser explores how the cable network Nickelodeon combines an appeal to kids formidable purchasing power with assertions of their political and cultural power Mediatized Conflict Simon Cottle, 2006 Annotation This important book brings together the latest research findings and theoretical discussions to develop an encompassing multidimensional and sophisticated understanding of the social complexities political dynamics and cultural forms of mediatized conflicts in the world today Jacket Radical Teacher, 2008 Criminology Chris Hale, 2005 Criminology is the ideal textbook for undergraduate and postgraduate students coming to the subject for the first time Written by a team of leading criminologists the book covers a wide range of topics including historical and contemporary understandings of crime and criminal justice different forms of crime from street crime to state crime who commits crime and who are the victims of crime and how society and state agencies respond to crime and disorder The contributions to the book offer clear accessible introductions to the main issues in criminology and the book includes questions summaries further reading a comprehensive glossary and tables and diagrams throughout BOOK JACKET Teen Life in Latin
