Language beyond Words: The

Neuroscience of Accent Ignacio Moreno-Torres, Peter Mariën, Guadalupe Dávila, Marcelo L. Berthier, 2017-03-23 Language learning also implies the acquisition of a set of phonetic rules and prosodic contours which define the accent in that language While often considered as merely accessory accent is an essential component of psychological identity as it embodies information on origin culture and social class Speaking with a non standard foreign accent is not inconsequential because it may negatively impact communication and social adjustment Nevertheless the lack of a formal definition of accent may explain that as compared with other aspects of language it has received relatively little attention until recently During the past decade there has been increasing interest in the analysis of accent from a neuroscientific perspective This e book integrates data from different scientific frameworks The reader will find fruitful research on new models of accent processing how learning a new accent proceeds and the role of feedback on accent learning in healthy subjects In addition information on accent changes in pathological conditions including developmental and psychogenic foreign accent syndromes as well as the description of a new variant of foreign accent syndrome is also included It is anticipated that the articles in this e book will enhance the understanding of accent as a linguistic phenomenon the neural networks supporting it and potential interventions to accelerate acquisition or relearning of native accents American Speech Louise Pound,Kemp

Native Speech Eric Overmyer,1986 Foreign Accent Alene Moyer,2013-03-14 To what extent do our accents determine the way we are perceived by others Is a foreign accent inevitably associated with social stigma Accent is a matter of great public interest given the impact of migration on national and global affairs but until now applied linguistics research has treated accent largely as a theoretical puzzle In this fascinating account Alene Moyer examines the social psychological educational and legal ramifications of sounding foreign. She explores how accent operates contextually through analysis of issues such as the neuro cognitive constraints on phonological acquisition individual factors that contribute to the intractability of accent foreign accent as a criterion for workplace discrimination and the efficacy of instruction for improving pronunciation. This holistic treatment of second language accent is an essential resource for graduate students and researchers interested in applied linguistics bilingualism and foreign language education

Non-native Speech in English Literature Maria Sutor, 2015-04-17 Foreign accents in fiction are a common stylistic instrument of marking a character as the Other and conveying national stereotypes in literature. This study investigates in a qualitative analysis the linguistic characteristics of non native fictional speech with a specific focus on the English Renaissance the Victorian Age and the 20th century war decades. After examining the concept of national identity and the image of the foreigner in these eras the study undertakes an in depth linguistic analysis of a literary corpus of drama and prose. Recurring patterns in non native fictional speech are uncovered and set into relation with the socio cultural background of the respective work which leads to intriguing findings about the changing image of the foreigner and the phenomenon of linguistic stereotyping in English literature

Hans Menning, 2005-01-19 Doctoral Thesis Dissertation from the year 2002 in the subject Psychology Biological Psychology grade magna cum laude University of Münster Institute for Experimental Audiology language English abstract The motivation for this thesis came from the intriguing idea that we continuously restructure our brain through everyday learning. How can this highly complex highly adaptive learning device change and reorganize itself all the time while keeping the illusion that we are constantly ourselves. The question is whether learning has the power to trigger functional and structural changes in the brain. Several levels of thinking are involved in an interdisciplinary way. Thus on a psychological level 3 major topics enter this work learning memory and preconscious or pre attentive perception and processing of information. Pre attentive perception means that the subjects attention and awareness is not mirrored in the neuronal response at a great deal. Learning is involved in this study as an improving discrimination of fine frequency and word duration differences the latter was examined in a group of native and non native speakers. Memory is referred to as sensory memory a short time memory trace that is established through the repetition of the same standard stimulus. In the auditory modality this has been termed echoic memory. A long repetitive training engraves deep traces into the memory. The lifelong training of one's native language results in a very fast and highly automated long term memory access. On a neurophysiological level the main topics are plasticity and the reorganization of the underlying representational brain areas

Plastic changes on a molecular synaptic and neuronal level and reorganization of cortical maps have been demonstrated abundantly in animal studies On a physical level the measured magnetic fields and the calculation of the source parameters of their underlying neural generators are discussed in the light of the neurophysiological and psychological phenomena Therefore the aim of this dissertation thesis was to transfer the insights of animal plasticity research onto the human brain and to draw a connection line between discrimination learning and the underlying neurophysiological changes In a second step these effects of discrimination learning are tested on speech perception Submerged, a Tragedy in One Act H.
