Natural Attachment:

"What Is Not" and "What Is" David Fisher, 2021-07-27 David Fisher invites us to create our own roadmap for life's journey. For any of us feeling trapped by our own thought habits, this gem of a book offers concrete practices for us to get better acquainted with our humanity and to cultivate benefit for ourselves and our fellow humans. There are many approaches to mindfulness and meditation in the world, and I have often found myself in the hopes of mastering my thoughts and suffering less flitting from one to the next without really landing. Until now, David's book offers a process of active learning with the practices in each chapter assisting in tailoring a nourishing personal practice. I have become more aware of my own habitual patterns of thinking and am more able to let these go if they are not of benefit. The beginning of inner freedom. As a social worker, I would urge helping professionals to work with this book as a means of cultivating equanimity as an antidote to burnout and vicarious trauma. Gisele Benoit MSW

Aelred of Rievaulx John R. Sommerfeldt, 2005 For the medieval Cistercian abbot Aelred of Rievaulx, human beings are capable of happiness because human nature is good, but the self-defeating choices of humans have led to their misery. A loving God leads humans to happiness by nudging their free wills toward choosing the good, and then if they respond positively, giving them the power to realize that good. The power or virtue which perfects the human intellect is humility, which is not meekness but self-knowledge gained through introspection and meditation on and through nature and Scripture. The will is perfected through love, without which no human act is good. Love for oneself, for others, and for God are complementary, not competing, acts of the will. A special way of loving is friendship, on which Aelred's teaching is perhaps the most complete and most sophisticated in the history of Christian thought. Perfection is, for Aelred, attainable in this life, since he sees perfection as a process, not a static condition. That condition will be attained in the total fulfillment of the afterlife.

Self and No-Self Dale Mathers, Melvin E. Miller, Osamu Ando, 2013-12-16 This collection explores the growing interface between Eastern and Western concepts of what it is to be human from analytical psychology, psychoanalytic, and Buddhist perspectives. The relationship between these different approaches has been discussed for decades, with each discipline inviting its followers to explore the depths of the psyche and confront the sometimes difficult psychological experiences that can emerge during any in-depth exploration of mental processes. Self and No-Self considers topics discussed at the Self and No-Self conference in Kyoto, Japan, in 2006. International experts from practical and theoretical backgrounds compare and contrast Buddhist and psychological traditions, providing a fresh insight on the relationship between the two. Areas covered include the concept of self, Buddhist theory and practice, psychotherapeutic theory and practice, mysticism and spirituality, myth and fairy tale. This book explains how a Buddhist approach can be integrated into the clinical setting and will interest seasoned practitioners and theoreticians from analytical psychology, psychoanalytic, and Buddhist backgrounds, as well as novices in these fields.

and narratological concepts as well as an analysis of the global structure of the narratives Relying on this combined approach Rose demonstrates how Augustine explores the full breadth of his narrative material in the service of his argument In addition this book situates Augustine's text in its cultural historical context Principles and Practice of Crown and Bridgework Hart John Goslee, 1913 A Philosophical Treatise on the Nature and Constitution of Man George Harris, 1876
