Making Faces Using Forensic And Archaeological Evidence:

Making Faces John Prag, Richard Neave, 1997 Applied also to modern criminal investigations facial reconstruction brings together the work of numerous specialists ranging from dentists to geneticists and from archaeologists to radiologists. The important historical implications of their work are no more strongly demonstrated than in their confirmation that the body resting in Tomb II at Verginia was that of King Philip II the father of Alexander the Great when the face was reconstructed the eye injury received by Philip at Methone was unmistakable. Making Faces takes the reader into byways of forensic study surgery and folklore and reveals how the art of facial reconstruction has opened up whole new vistas of the past.

Computer-Graphic Facial Reconstruction John G. Clement, Murray K. Marks, 2005-07-02 This unique book looks at a cost efficient fast and accurate means of facial reconstruction from segmented decomposed or skeletal remains using computer graphic and computational means. Computer Graphic Facial Reconstruction is designed as a valuable resource for those scientists designing new research projects and protocols as well as a practical handbook of methods and techniques for medico legal practitioners who actually identify the faceless victims of crime. It looks at a variety of approaches artificial intelligence using neural networks case based reasoning Bayesian belief systems along with a variety of imaging methods radiological CT MRI and the use of imaging devices. The methods described in this book complement or may even replace the less reliable more traditional means of securing identification by presumptive means i.e. recognition of clothing personal effects and clay reconstruction. Covers cutting edge technologies in the context of historical forensic reconstruction methods. Features stellar authors from around the globe. Bridges the areas of computer graphics animation and forensic anthropology.

Images and Artefacts of the Ancient World Alan K. Bowman, Michael Brady, 2005-05-26 In this genuinely productive interdisciplinary dialogue engineering scientists archaeologists and historians discuss how recent exciting developments in imaging image analysis and image display diffusion can be applied to three dimensional objects of material culture from the classical world ranging from inscribed writing tablets to buildings and urban sites. The fifteen papers explore the ways in which the scientific contributors and the historians are thinking about subjectivity of interpretation visual cognition and the need to improve the presentation of evidence so as to feed directly back into their own scientific thinking and to encourage genuine innovation in developing methods of image enhancement and the interpretation of objects.

The Human Face
Mary Katsikitis, 2012-12-06 James W Pennebaker The University of Texas at Austin At first glance a scientific book on the face doesn't make a great deal of sense. After all the face is not a biological unit that falls into a specific medical specialty. By the same token it is not part of a specific clear functional system that falls within the purview subdiscipline of psychology philosophy sociology or any other traditional area. It seems that the only organizing principle of the face is that all humans have one and that it is central to the experience of being human. As a social stimulus the face can signal emotions personality sex physical and mental health social status age and aspects of our thoughts intentions and our inner selves. At various points in our lives we spend a tremendous amount of time and money for cosmetics cleansers medicines and occasionally surgery to enhance our face In the same way that a normative symmetrical face can attract praise and even adoration damage to the face through birth defects disease or injury is almost always stigmatizing Our faces then are social advertisements for who we are
