National Parks Color Smart, 2017-08-05 A national park is a park in use for conservation purposes Often it is a reserve of natural semi natural or developed land that a sovereign state declares or owns Although individual nations designate their own national parks differently there is a common idea the conservation of wild nature for posterity and as a symbol of national pride An international organization the International Union for Conservation of Nature IUCN and its World Commission on Protected Areas has defined National Park as its Category II type of protected areas While this type of national park had been proposed previously the United States established the first public park or pleasuring ground for the benefit and enjoyment of the people Yellowstone National Park in 1872 Although Yellowstone was not officially termed a national park in its establishing law it was always termed such in practice and is widely held to be the first and oldest national park in the world However established by the Mongolian government in 1778 the area surrounding Bogd Khan Uul

Mountain located south of the country's capital Ulaanbaatar is probably the oldest national park predating Yellowstone by nearly a century. The largest national park in the world meeting the IUCN definition is the Northeast Greenland National Park which was established in 1974. According to the IUCN 6 555 national parks worldwide met its criteria in 2006. IUCN is still discussing the parameters of defining a national park. National parks are almost always open to visitors. Most national parks provide outdoor recreation and camping opportunities as well as classes designed to educate the public on the importance of conservation and the natural wonders of the land in which the national park is located.
