Environmental Design Evaluation Arnold Friedmann, Craig Zimring, Ervin Zube, 2013-12-14 As the nature of the field of environment behavior relations is interdisciplinary the collaboration of three persons of diverse professional backgrounds in writing this book is therefore not surprising This collaboration started in 1972 with the offering of a graduate seminar Environment Behavior and Design Evaluation at the University of Massachusetts Several research projects dealing with design evaluation which have been conducted at the University are also included as case studies in this book Chapter III the ELEMUR study and the Visitor Center study Two of the authors have worked as part of the instructional team in the seminar and all of the authors have participated in varying degrees in the ELEMUR Project The authors backgrounds in design psychology and landscape architecture suggest by example that professionals with diverse backgrounds but a common interest in environment behavior problems can indeed learn to communicate and to collaborate Since design evaluation is a new field and very little specific literature on the subject exists to date we hope this book fills a current need

Perspectives on Environment and Behavior Daniel Stokols, 2013-11-11 The inception of this volume can be traced to a series of Environmental Psychology Colloquia presented at the University of California Irvine during the spring of 1974 These colloquia were held in conjunction with Social Ecology 252 a graduate seminar on Man and the Environment Although the eight colloquia covered a wide range of topics and exemplified a diversity of research techniques they seemed to converge on some common theoretical and methodological assumptions about the nature of environment behavioral research The apparent continuities among these colloquia suggested the utility of developing a manuscript that would provide a historical overview of research on environment and behavior a representation of its major concerns and an analysis of its conceptual and empirical trends Thus expanded versions of the initial presentations were integrated with a supplemental set of invited manuscripts to yield the present volume of original contributions by leading researchers in the areas of ecological and environmental psychology

Singer,2020-09-10 The development of a field or an area of inquiry is often marked by changes in measurement techniques shifts in analytic emphasis and disputes over the best ways of doing research In many areas of psychology a number of issues have characterized methodological evolution of the discipline including questions regarding context and reductionism or laboratory versus field research For some of the newer areas in psychology such as environment or health psychology this is not an issue of either or Although there has been some debate about these trade offs it is generally regarded by people in this field that some combination of the two approaches is essential Depending on the question being studied this balance may change However the questions asked are less likely to inquire which way is better and concentrate on how both may be used This observation serves to illustrate the fact that different research endeavours have different methodological issues Originally published in 1985 this volume explores some of the issues characterizing work on health environment and behavior     Theoretical Perspectives in Environment-Behavior Research Seymour Wapner,2000 Following upon the Handbook of Japan United States Environment Behavior Research published by Plenum in 1997 leading experts review the interrelationships among theory problem and method in environment behavior research The chapters focus on the philosophical and theoretical assumptions underlying current research and practice in the area and link those assumptions to specific substantive questions and methodologies     Psychiatric Annals ,1977     Toxicological Profile for 2-butoxyethanol and 2-butoxyethanol Acetate ,1998     Toxicological Profile for Ethion ,2000
