Models In Archaeology:

Models in Archaeology David L. Clarke, 2014-10-24 This major study reflects the increasing significance of careful model formation and testing in those academic subjects that are struggling from intuitive and aesthetic obscurantism toward a more disciplined and integrated approach to their fields of study The twenty six original contributions represent the carefully selected work of progressive archaeologists around the world covering the use of models on archaeological material of all kinds and from all periods from Palaeolithic to Medieval Their common theme is archaeological generalisation by means of explicit model building testing modification and reapplication The contributors seek to show that it is the use of certain models in particular ways that defines archaeology as the practice of one discipline with a set of general tenets that are as applicable in Peru as in Persia Australia as Alaska Sweden as Scotland on material from the second millennium B C to the second millennium A D They assert that careful model formulation within archaeology and the cautious exchange and testing of models within and beyond the discipline provides the only route to the formation of the common internationally valid body of theory which defines a vigorous and coherent discipline and distinguishes it from being a collection of merely regionally applicable special cases

Nonlinear Models for Archaeology and Anthropology William W. Baden, 2016-12-05 The dominant social theory used by archaeologists has tended to focus on either small scale agency or large scale cultural patterns and processes of change The authors of this volume argue that archaeologists should use nonlinear models to more accurately model the connections between scales of analysis and show how micro scale variation can lead to macro scale cultural change This work examines the applications of nonlinear systems models within archaeology and evaluates the range of approaches currently encompassed within Complexity Theory across disciplinary boundaries while grounding in theoretical pluralism By situating archaeological knowledge within broader scientific conversations the book encourages readers to reimagine the past not as static or collapsed but as complex entangled and instructive for contemporary challenges This book is essential reading for students researchers and practitioners in archaeology as well as complexity science It will also appeal to scholars in anthropology environmental studies geography and network science interested in long term human environmental dynamics and the application of complex systems approaches in historical contexts

Agent-Based Modeling for Archaeology Iza Romanowska, Colin D. Wren, Stefani A. Crabtree, 2021-08-02 To fully understand not only the past but also the trajectories of human societies we need a more dynamic view of human social systems Agent based modeling ABM which can create fine scale models of behavior over time and space may reveal important general patterns of human activity Agent Based Modeling for Archaeology is the first ABM textbook designed for researchers studying the human past Appropriate for scholars from archaeology the digital humanities and other social sciences this book offers novices and more experienced ABM researchers a modular approach to learning ABM and using it effectively Readers will find the necessary background discussion of modeling techniques and traps references and algorithms to use ABM in their own work They will also find engaging examples of how other scholars have applied ABM ranging from the study of the intercontinental migration pathways of early hominins to the weather crop population cycles of the American Southwest to the trade networks of Ancient Rome This textbook provides the foundations needed to simulate the complexity of past human societies offering researchers a richer understanding of the past and likely future of our species

The American Journal of Archaeology and of the History of the Fine Arts, 1891 The World of Jesus and the Early Church Craig A Evans, 2022-05-03 How do religious texts impact the way communities of faith understand themselves In The World of Jesus and the Early Church Identity and Interpretation in Early Communities of Faith Craig Evans leads an interdisciplinary team of scholars to discover and explain how the dynamic relationship between text and community enabled ancient Christian and Jewish communities to define themselves To this end scholars composed two sets of essays The first examines how communities understood and defined themselves and the second looks at how sacred texts informed communities about their own self understanding and identity in earliest stages of Christianity and late Second Temple Judaism Whether revealing new understandings of Jesus before Pilate the rituals governing the execution and burial of criminals or the problems of dating ancient manuscripts The World of Jesus and the Early Church draws the reader into the world of the early Christian and Jewish communities in fresh and insightful ways Proceedings of the Society of Biblical Archaeology Society of Biblical Archæology (London, England),1900 The Directory of Museums & Living Displays Kenneth Hudson,Ann Nicholls,1985-06-18 American Journal of Archaeology ,1887 Archaeological Approaches to Medieval Europe Kathleen Biddick,1984 In bringing together these papers Archaeological Approaches to Medieval Europe demonstrates the need for active participation of different disciplines in formulating questions about and interpretations of material culture in the Middle Ages It celebrates the coming of age of historical archaeology of which medieval archaeology is a subdiscipline The papers collected are striking for their diversity of approaches and subject matter They reflect the spirit of an open area excavation where specialists from many disciplines with diverging methodologies meet and work side by side No paper is specifically devoted to an excavation report although the majority of contributors made use of data from such reports The collection is intended primarily as a sampler but a thematic unity emerges around the potential of archaeological approaches to contribute to a political ecology of the medieval period The volume is an indispensable offering for archaeologists and historians of the Middle Ages seeking an appraisal of the state of the young discipline of medieval archaeology Models and Taxonomy in American Archaeology David M. Stothers,1970 The Routledge Handbook of Bioarchaeology in Southeast Asia and the Pacific Islands Marc Oxenham,Hallie Buckley,2015-11-19 In recent years the bioarchaeology of Southeast Asia and the Pacific islands has seen enormous progress This new and exciting research is synthesised contextualised and expanded upon in The Routledge Handbook of Bioarchaeology in Southeast Asia and the Pacific Islands The volume is divided into two broad sections one dealing with mainland and island Southeast Asia and a second section dealing with the Pacific islands A multi scalar approach is employed to the bio social dimensions of Southeast Asia and the Pacific islands with contributions alternating between region and or site specific scales of operation to the individual or personal scale The more personal level of osteobiographies enriches the understanding of the lived experience in past communities Including a number of contributions from sub disciplinary approaches tangential to bioarchaeology the book provides a broad theoretical and methodological approach Providing new information on the globally relevant topics of farming population mobility subsistence and health no other volume provides such a range of coverage on these important themes Anthropologie ,1975 Cognitive Models in Palaeolithic Archaeology Thomas Wynn,Frederick L. Coolidge,2016-10-17 How did human thought evolve into the highly complex process it is today In the field of evolutionary cognitive archaeology cognitive science and archaeology intersect to provide a more complete and grounded picture of the mind With the combination of cognitive theories and archaeological evidence this burgeoning field is only beginning to tap into the potential for a better understanding of the development of specific cognitive abilities Cognitive Models in Palaeolithic Archaeology explores hominin cognitive development by applying formal cognitive models to analyze prehistoric remains from the entire range of the Palaeolithic from the earliest stone tools 3.3 million years ago to artistic developments that emerged 50 000 years ago Several different cognitive models are presented including expert cognition information processing material engagement theory embodied extended cognition neuroaesthetics visual resonance theory theory of mind and neuronal recycling By examining archaeological remains and thereby past activities and behavior through the grounded lenses of these models a mosaic pattern of human cognitive evolution emerges This volume authored by many leading authorities in the field of cognitive archaeology will attract scholars and students of cognitive evolution and paleoanthropology who will find a new understanding of hominin cognitive evolution and substantive conclusions about our hominin evolution as opportunities for further research BAR International Series ,2002
