Homelessness in American Literature John Allen,2018-10-24 This book analyzes the theme of homelessness in American literature from the Civil War through the depression Drawing on the work of Harriet Beecher Stowe Horatio Alger Stephen Crane Jacob Riis Jack London Meridel Le Sueur and many others it reveals how homelessness has been either romanticized or objectified

Mestiz@ Scripts, Digital Migrations, and the Territories of Writing D. Baca,2008-05-26 Conventional scholarship on written communication positions the Western alphabet as a precondition for literacy Thus pictographic non verbal writing practices of Mesoamerica remain obscured by representations of lettered speech This book examines how contemporary Mestiz scripts challenge alphabetic dominance thereby undermining the colonized territories of writing Strategic weavings of Aztec and European inscription systems not only promote historically grounded accounts of how recorded information is expressed across cultures but also speak to emerging studies on visual multimodal education Baca Espinosa argues that Mestiz literacies advance new ways of reading and writing applicable to diverse classrooms of the twenty first century

Acts of Enjoyment Thomas J. Rickert,2007-05-20 Why are today's students not realizing their potential as critical thinkers Although educators have for two decades incorporated contemporary cultural studies into the teaching of composition and rhetoric many students lack the powers of self expression that are crucial for effecting social change Acts of Enjoyment presents a critique of current pedagogies and introduces a psychoanalytical approach in teaching composition and rhetoric Thomas Rickert builds upon the advances of cultural studies and its focus on societal trends and broadens this view by placing attention on the conscious and subconscious thought of the individual By introducing the cultural theory work of Slavoj Zizek Rickert seeks to encourage personal and social invention rather than simply following a course of unity equity or consensus that is so prevalent in current writing instruction He argues that writing should not be treated as a simple skill as a na ve self expression or as a tool for personal advancement but rather as a reflection of social and psychical forces such as jouissance enjoyment sensual pleasure desire and fantasy creating a more sophisticated panoptic form The goal of the psychoanalytical approach is to highlight the best pedagogical aspects of cultural studies to allow for well rounded individual expression ultimately providing the tools necessary to address larger issues of politics popular culture ideology and social transformation

I-writing Karen Surman Paley,2001 In this ethnographic study of the teaching of writing Karen Surman Paley reveals the social significance of first person writing and the limitations of a popular taxonomy of composition studies Paley looks critically at the way social constructionists have created an Other in the field of composition studies and named it expressivist Paley demonstrates the complexity of approaches to teaching writing through an ethnographic study of two composition faculty at Boston College a program that some would say is expressivist She prompts her colleagues to consider how family experiences shape the way students feel about and treat people of races religions genders and sexual preferences other than their own Finally she suggests to the field of composition that practitioners spend less time shoring up taxonomies of the field and more time sharing pedagogies

Teaching/Writing in Thirdspaces Rhonda C. Grego,Nancy S. Thompson,2008 Rhonda C Grego and Nancy S Thompson argue that because the studio is physically and institutionally outside but alongside both students other coursework and the hierarchy of the institution it represents a thirdspace a unique position in which to effect institutional change Teaching Writing in Thirdspaces provides an alternative approach to traditional basic writing courses that can be adopted in educational institutions of all types and at all levels

BOOK JACKET
Theorizing Composition Mary Kennedy,1998-06-25 The last 25 years have witnessed extraordinary growth in the academic specialization variously described as composition studies or rhetoric and composition What was noticeable about the field in its infancy was a preoccupation with practice a lack of emphasis on theory and an exclusive reliance on the writing process As its disciplinary status has grown the field has become far more theoretical Composition studies has expanded its focus reconceptualized the writing process and embraced a wide range of critical perspectives The result of this change is that terms such as poststructuralism social construction gender and genre which were largely unknown in 1965 now dominate discussion This reference book is a guide to the multiplicity of theories that have emerged to form the disciplinary foundation of composition studies The volume consists of 66 entries each of which is written by an expert contributor and focuses on a particular theory or group of theories. While the entries show how various individuals have contributed to theoretical movements, very few concentrate on the work of a single theorist. Each entry first provides a critical summary of a particular theory or group of theories, including key elements, basic concepts and claims, and information about seminal or particularly influential works. It then reviews the theory's critical reception in composition studies and discusses its significance in the field. The bibliography at the end of each entry lists primary texts and major scholarship related to the theory and provides additional suggestions for further reading. The volume closes with a selected bibliography of important works.

Introduction to Scholarship in Modern Languages and Literatures David G. Nicholls, 2015-01-01. The third edition of the MLA's widely used Introduction to Scholarship in Modern Languages and Literatures features sixteen new essays by leading scholars. Designed to highlight relations among languages and forms of discourse, the volume is organized into three sections. Understanding Language provides an overview of the field of linguistics with special attention to language acquisition and the social life of languages. Forming Texts offers tools for understanding how speakers and writers shape language; it examines scholarship in the distinct but interrelated fields of rhetoric, composition, and poetics. Reading Literature and Culture continues the work of the first two sections by introducing major areas of critical study. The nine essays in this section cover textual and historical scholarship, interpretation, comparative cultural and translation studies, and the interdisciplinary topics of gender, sexuality, race, and migrations, among others. As in previous volumes, an epilogue examines the role of the scholar in contemporary society. Each essay discusses the significance, underlying assumptions, and limits of an important field of inquiry, traces the historical development of its subject, introduces key terms, outlines modes of research now being pursued, postulates future developments, and provides a list of suggestions for further reading. This book will interest any member of the academic community seeking a review of recent scholarship while it provides an indispensable resource for undergraduate and graduate students of modern languages and literatures.

Strategies for Teaching First-year Composition Duane H. Roen, 2002. This book presents 93 essays that offer guidance, reassurance, and commentary on the many activities leading up to and surrounding classroom instruction in first-year composition. Essays in the book are written by instructors who teach in community colleges, liberal arts colleges, state university systems, and research institutions. The 14 section titles and 2 representative essays from each section are: Section 1: Contexts for Teaching Writing, The Departmental Perspective; Roger Gilles and Composition; Community and Curriculum; A Letter to New Composition Teachers; Geoffrey Chase; Section 2: Seeing the Forest and the Trees; Curriculum Teaching in an Idealized Outcomes-Based First Year Writing Program; Irvin Peckham and Constructing Bridges between High School and College Writing; Marguerite Helmers; Section 3: Constructing Syllabus Materials; On Syllabi; Victor Villanueva and Departmental Syllabus Experience in Writing; Gregory Clark; Section 4: Constructing Effective Writing Assignments; Sequencing Writing Projects in Any Composition Class; Penn State University Composition Program Handbook and Autobiography; The Rhetorical Efficacy of Self Composition of Consciousness Patricia H. Perry, 2000 The premise of this book is that teachers of writing will never make any significant strides in the teaching and learning of writing until pervasive inhibiting and misinformed views about writing are transformed in the consciousness of people from the home and classroom to the office and boardroom Dr Perry delves into the nature of consciousness the epistemologies of predominant teaching approaches and some heretofore undervalued phenomenological foundations and similarities between the pedagogies and praxes of Paulo Freire and Peter Elbow As a way to begin to address the continuing writing crisis Dr Perry proposes a teaching approach a composition of consciousness that targets and transforms inhibiting views about writing and promotes the creation of productive writing knowledge The

The Writing Teacher's Sourcebook Edward P. J. Corbett, Nancy Myers, Gary Tate, 2000 Now in its fourth edition this widely acclaimed sourcebook remains one of the most up to date and inclusive works on teaching writing today In this edition the editors have added twelve new essays and deleted several from the previous edition making the content as timely as possible Emphasizing the importance of adapting good pedagogy to multiple environments and audiences this unique collection features some of the most intellectually exciting and pedagogically sound articles in the field The Writing Teacher's Sourcebook 4 e is the definitive resource for beginning and experienced teachers alike Blundering for a Change John Paul Tassoni, William H. tell us about the limits and possibilities of progressive teaching Christopher Schroeder, 2001-03 Christopher Schroeder spends almost no time disputing David Bartholomae's famous essay but throughout ReInventing the University he elaborates an approach to teaching composition that is at odds with the tradition that essay has come to represent. On the other hand his approach is also at odds with elements of the pedagogies of such theorists as Berlin Bizzell and Shor. Schroeder argues that for students postmodern instability in literacy and meaning has become a question of the legitimacy of current discourse of education. Schroeder is committed then to constructing literacies jointly with students and by so doing to bringing students to engage more deeply with education and society.

Integrating Literature and Writing Instruction Judith H. Anderson, Christine R. Farris, 2007-01-01 Judith H. Anderson and Christine R. Farris colleagues at Indiana University and prominent scholars in literary studies and composition respectively aim here to bridge the perceived division between the two disciplines. In a spirit of curricular collaboration Integrating Literature and Writing Instruction presents an array of courses mainly for non English majors that use literature in teaching first year college students how to read write and think critically. Contributors teach at a range of institutions from Research I and large state universities to small selective colleges and use different classroom approaches some highly participatory and others combining lectures with small group work. Divided into three groups representing humanities core courses courses that focus on literature and courses that focus on cultural issues in relation to literature the essays explore the use of a variety of literary texts from Shakespeare's sonnets to historical novels to detective fiction. Contributors offer imaginative assignments and innovative pedagogical techniques that can be adapted profitably in multiple courses and institutional contexts. The concluding section narrates the collaborative development of a course on language metaphor and textuality which the editors offer as a successful model of what literature and writing instruction can accomplish together.

ADE Bulletin Association of Departments of English, 1995 WPA, Writing Program Administration, 1994 Coming of Age Linda K. Shamoon, 2000

Part book part CD ROM Coming of Age marks a new age in curriculum development offering innovative new ideas for transforming advanced writing courses. Together these essays describe and offer concrete examples of curriculum that incorporates discipline based theory and history that situates writers in public discourse and that fully prepares students for careers as writers. Because Coming of Age is intended to instigate direct immediate curriculum and pedagogical action it is ideally suited to the book CD ROM format that the authors call print linked publishing. The theoretical framework is presented in the solid stable medium of print. Part I proposes the move from advanced composition to advanced writing and along with Part II argues for what the undergraduate writing curriculum should accomplish. The generative course descriptions and program recommendations are presented in the interactive medium of a CD ROM. Here you'll find Parts III and IV which explain and demonstrate how to accomplish these goals discuss ways to implement such curriculum and provide concrete suggestions from a variety of campuses that have done so. The CD ROM also features a full list of course descriptions for each selection All of the electronic material can be downloaded as you compose your own curriculum and course proposals
