Negotiating Responsibility In The Criminal Justice:

Negotiating Responsibility in the Criminal Justice System Jack B. Kamerman, 1998 With this collection of essays Jack Kamerman presents the first sustained examination of one of the underpinnings of the operation of the criminal justice system the issue of responsibility for actions and as a consequence the issue of accountability Unique in the breadth of its approach this volume examines the issue of responsibility from the perspectives of criminal justice professionals sociologists philosophers and public administrators from four countries Attacking the problem on various levels the essayists look first at the assumptions made by criminal justice institutions regarding offender responsibility then turn to the views of offenders on the causes of their own actions and to the consequences of offenders either accepting or denying responsibility These scholars also examine the social and psychological circumstances under which people in general accept or deny responsibility for what they do thus providing the basis for understanding the process of social distance as a major precondition for people to commit atrocities without seeing themselves as responsible Understanding the circumstances under which people either distance themselves from or embrace responsibility enables criminologists to make grounded recommendations for reordering responsibility in the criminal justice system and more generally for restoring a sense of responsibility to organizations occupations and society The substantive vehicle for this analysis of accountability and responsibility is the relationship between criminal justice institutions and the offenders who are under institutional control Aside from Kamerman the contributors are William C Collins Charles Fethé Gilbert Geis Robert J Kelly Alison Liebling Jess Maghan Mark Harrison Moore Paul Neurath John Rakis William Rentzmann and Jose E Sanchez

Negotiating Responsibility Kimberley White, 2007-11-02 The meaning of criminal responsibility emerged in early to mid twentieth century Canadian capital murder cases through a complex synthesis of socio cultural medical and legal processes Kimberley White places the negotiable concept of responsibility at the centre of her interdisciplinary inquiry rather than the more fixed legal concepts of insanity or guilt In doing so she brings subtlety to more general arguments about the historical relationship between law and psychiatry the insanity defence and the role of psychiatric expertise in criminal law cases Through capital murder case files White examines how the idea of criminal responsibility was produced organized and legitimized in and through institutional structures such as remissions trial and post trial procedures identity politics of race character citizenship and gender and overlapping narratives of mind state and capacity In particular she points to the subtle but deeply influential ways in which common sense about crime punishment criminality and human nature shaped the boundaries of expert knowledge at every stage of the judicial process Negotiating Responsibility fills a void in Western socio legal history scholarship and provides an essential point of reference from which to evaluate current criminal law practices and law reform initiatives in Canada
