William Edward Burghardt Du Bois

Negro Novelist:

The New Negro Henry Louis Gates Jr., Gene Andrew Jarrett, 2021-06-08 When African American intellectuals announced the birth of the New Negro around the turn of the twentieth century they were attempting through a bold act of renaming to change the way blacks were depicted and perceived in America. By challenging stereotypes of the Old Negro and declaring that the New Negro was capable of high achievement black writers tried to revolutionize how whites viewed blacks and how blacks viewed themselves. Nothing less than a strategy to re-create the public face of the race the New Negro became a dominant figure of racial uplift between Reconstruction and World War II as well as a central idea of the Harlem or New Negro Renaissance. Edited by Henry Louis Gates Jr and Gene Andrew Jarrett The New Negro collects more than one hundred canonical and lesser known essays published between 1892 and 1938 that examine the issues of race and representation in African American culture. These readings by writers including W E B Du Bois Paul Laurence Dunbar Alain Locke Carl Van Vechten Zora Neale Hurston and Richard Wright discuss the trope of the New Negro and the milieu in which this figure existed from almost every conceivable angle. Political essays are joined by essays on African American fiction poetry drama music painting and sculpture. More than fascinating historical documents these essays remain essential to the way African American identity and history are still understood today.

Winona Pauline E. Hopkins, 2021-03-24 Winona A Tale of Negro Life in the South and Southwest 19902 1903 is a novel by African American author Pauline Elizabeth Hopkins. Originally published in The Colored American Magazine America's first monthly periodical covering African American arts and culture Winona A Tale of Negro Life in the South and Southwest is a groundbreaking novel that addresses themes of race and colonization from the perspective of a young girl of mixed descent. As white settlers moved westward across North America they not only displaced the indigenous population but brought into contact peoples from opposite ends of Earth. On an island in the middle of Lake Erie White Eagle recently displaced after the dissolution of the Buffalo Creek reservation has built a home for himself and his African American wife. Adopting her son Judah White Eagle establishes a life for his family apart from the prejudices and violence of American life. A daughter Winona is born soon after and grows to be proud of her rich cultural heritage. When two white hunters stumble upon the island however and when White Eagle is soon found dead his family is left to the mercy of an uncaring hostile nation. Winona A Tale of Negro Life in the South and Southwest is a heartbreakingly work of historical fiction from a true pioneer of American literature a woman whose talent and principles afforded her the vision necessary for illuminating the injustices of life in a nation founded on slavery and genocide. With a beautifully designed cover and professionally typeset manuscript this edition of Pauline Elizabeth Hopkins Winona A Tale of Negro Life in the South and Southwest is a classic work of African American literature reimagined for modern readers.

Black Novelist as White Racist Joseph A. Young, 1989-08-07 In exceptionally close analyses of six novels by black writer Oscar Micheaux 1884 1948 beginning with The Conquest written in 1913 The Forged Note 1915 The Homesteader 1917 The Wind from Nowhere 1941 The Case of Mrs Wingate 1945 and The Story of Dorothy Stanfield 1946 Young traces the development of Micheaux's racial theories and of his stance as apologist for American imperialism. Young argues that these novels are examples of the detrimental effect of oppressive myths on early twentieth century black behavior and values. The characters in the novels tend to mirror the black stereotypes of the post bellum confederate romanticists both the Cavalier racists and the Negrophobes. Adopting the world view of the oppressor required that Micheaux reject both his own blackness and that of his racial kinsmen. Along with many other black writers Micheaux believed that to assimilate blacks must learn to pass for white by adopting Anglo Saxon values myths and philosophy. The novels make statements about life from a point of view that exaggerates the worst side of black character perpetuating the myth of black inferiority that the black protagonists transcend. Young explores the influences of both Jack London and Friedrich Nietzsche on Micheaux's heroes. Micheaux's significance lies less as a figure of literary merit than as an especially graphic example of a black artist unwittingly espousing the beliefs of the oppressor rather than writing out of a truly black aesthetic philosophy. Ironically Micheaux not only perpetuated racist myths in his novels but was the victim of such myths as well. Between 1919 and 1948 Micheaux also wrote directed and produced over thirty films and was perhaps the most important Afro American filmmaker before the Civil Rights Movement. The only in depth study of Micheaux's novels and one rich in period detail and insights into the evolution of black stereotypes as reflected in the novels of a black artist Black Novelist as White Racist would be useful to students and teachers of Afro American Literature and Plains and Western Literature as well as to those interested in race theory film history and sociology. The Negro's Progress in Fifty Years American Academy of Political and Social Science, 1913

The Sage in Harlem Charles Scruggs, 2019-12-01 Originally published in 1984 The Sage in Harlem establishes H. L. Mencken as a catalyst for the blossoming of black literary culture in the 1920s and chronicles the intensely productive exchange of ideas between Mencken and two generations of black writers the Old Guard who pioneered the Harlem Renaissance and the Young Wits who sought to reshape it a decade later. From his readings of unpublished letters and articles from black publications of the time Charles Scruggs argues that black writers saw usefulness in Mencken's critique of American culture his advocacy of literary realism and his satire of America. They understood that realism could free them from the pernicious stereotypes that had hounded past efforts at honest portraiture and that satire could be the means whereby the white man might be paid back in his own coin. Scruggs contends that the content of Mencken's observations whether ludicrously narrow or dazzlingly astute was of secondary importance to the Harlem intellectuals. It was the honesty precision and fearlessness of his expression that proved irresistible to a generation of artists desperate to be taken seriously. The writers of the Harlem Renaissance turned to Mencken as an uncompromising and uncondescending commentator whose criticisms were informed by deep interest in African American life but guided by the same standards he applied to all literature whatever its source. The Sage in Harlem demonstrates how Mencken through the example of his own work his power as editor of the American Mercury and his dedication to literary quality was able to nurture the developing talents of black authors from James Weldon Johnson to Richard Wright William Black, Novelist Thomas Wemyss Reid,1902 A

Jarrett,1964 Deans and Truants Gene Andrew Jarrett,2013-03-01 For a work to be considered African American literature does it need to focus on black characters or political themes Must it represent these within a specific stylistic range

Or is it enough for the author to be identified as African American In Deans and Truants Gene Andrew Jarrett traces the shifting definitions of African American literature and the authors who wrote beyond those boundaries at the cost of critical dismissal and at times obscurity From the late nineteenth century to the end of the twentieth de facto deans critics and authors as different as William Howells Alain Locke Richard Wright and Amiri Baraka prescribed the shifting parameters of realism and racial subject matter appropriate to authentic African American literature while truant authors such as Paul

Laurence Dunbar George S Schuyler Frank Yerby and Toni Morrison perhaps the most celebrated African American author of the twentieth century wrote literature anomalous to those standards Jarrett explores the issues at stake when Howells the Dean of American Letters argues in 1896 that only Dunbar s entirely black verse written in dialect would succeed Three decades later Locke the cultural arbiter of the Harlem Renaissance stands in contrast to Schuyler a journalist and novelist who questions the existence of a peculiarly black or New Negro art Next Wright s 1937 blueprint for African American writing sets the terms of the Chicago Renaissance but Yerby s version of historical romance approaches race and realism in alternative literary ways Finally Deans and Truants measures the gravitational pull of the late 1960s Black Aesthetic in Baraka s editorial silence on Toni Morrison s first and only short story Recitatif Drawing from a wealth of biographical historical and literary sources Deans and Truants describes the changing notions of race politics and gender that framed and were framed by the authors and critics of African American culture for more than a century Opportunity Charles Manhood on the Silent Screen Gerald R. Butters,2002 In early twentieth century motion picture houses offensive stereotypes of African Americans were as predictable as they were prevalent Watermelon eating chicken thievery savages with uncontrollable appetites Sambo and Zip Coon were all representations associated with African American people Most of these caricatures were rendered by whites in blackface Few people realize that from 1915 through 1929 a number of African American film directors worked diligently to counter such racist definitions of black manhood found in films like D W Griffith s The Birth of a Nation the 1915 epic that glorified the Ku Klux Klan In the wake of the film s phenomenal success African American filmmakers sought to defend and redefine black manhood through motion pictures Gerald Butters's comprehensive study of the African American cinematic vision in silent film concentrates on works largely ignored by most contemporary film scholars African American produced and directed films and white independent productions of all black features. Using these race movies to explore the construction of masculine identity and the use of race in popular culture he separates cinematic myth from historical reality the myth of the Euro American controlled cinematic portrayal of black men versus the actual black male experience. Through intense archival research Butters reconstructs many lost films expanding the discussion of race and representation beyond the debate about good and bad imagery to explore the construction of masculine identity and the use of race as device in the context of Western popular culture. He particularly examines the filmmaking of Oscar Micheaux the most prolific and controversial of all African American silent film directors and creator of the recently rediscovered Within Our Gates the legendary film that exposed a virtual litany of white abuses toward blacks. Black Manhood on the Silent Screen is unique in that it takes contemporary and original film theory applies it to the distinctive body of African American independent films in the silent era and relates the meaning of these films to larger political social and intellectual events in American society. By showing how both white and black men have defined their own sense of manhood through cinema it examines the intersection of race and gender in the movies and offers a deft interweaving of film theory American history and film history. Crisis William Edward Burghardt Du Bois, 1930. The Publishers Weekly, 1918. Current Literature, 1897. The Churchman, 1903. Littell's Living Age, 1925.
