Hospital-based Palliative Care Teams Robert J. Dunlop, J. M. Hockley, 1998 When the first edition of this book Terminal Care Support Teams the hospital hospice interface 1990 was written there were only a few advisory palliative care teams working in hospitals. Since then the number of teams has grown rapidly. The concept of these teams is now widely accepted but there is an increased need for information about setting up a team, how they work and how effective they are. This book looks at the need for hospital based palliative care teams and the challenges of bringing palliative care into the acute hospital setting. It reviews the needs of patients, their families and their professional carers and also looks at the theoretical and practical problems which may be encountered. For example there is practical advice on setting up hospital based palliative care teams, the selection of team members as well as coverage of team dynamics and the role of the pain clinic and palliation oncology.

Hospice and Palliative Care in Africa Michael Wright, David Clark, 2006-08-24 Conflict, poverty, endemic diseases and lack of clean water pose serious challenges for the population in Africa. This book focuses on palliative care and hospice development examining the development of palliative care services in 26 African countries where initiatives have been identified.

Terminal Care Support Teams Robert J. Dunlop, J. M. Hockley, 1990 The hospice movement has had a major impact on the lives of many terminally ill cancer patients and their families but most deaths still occur within less sensitive institutional environments. The support care team usually operating in an advisory capacity has developed as an important alternative for the care of the dying in hospitals. Based on the experience of several support care teams this book is the first to be devoted exclusively to terminal care support teams It will provide a framework for those who need to plan and operate services for hospitalized terminally ill patients The needs of patients and their families are reviewed as well as problems ranging from obtaining funding and the selection of team to in group dynamics and ethical questions It is especially valuable for the practical advice it contains on educating other hospital staff members The R.V.H. Manual on Palliative/hospice Care Ina Ajemian,Balfour M. Mount,1980
