Models For The Multitudes Social Values:

Realism and the Birth of the Modern United States Stanley Corkin, 1996 This book offers an interdisciplinary view of American culture in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries Using the conventions of historical study Stanley Corkin draws out the ways in which the works of writers and filmmakers from 1885 to 1925 shaped and were shaped by the business politics and social life of the period Corkin traces the entrance of the United States into the modern age by considering the historical dimension of cinema and literary aesthetics first of realism then naturalism and finally modernism He begins with the work of writer William Dean Howells and the advent of American cinema under the stewardship of Thomas Edison arguing that realism was complexly involved in Progressive political and economic reform Next analyses of Theodore Dreiser's novel Sister Carrie and the films of the Edison Company's star director Edwin S Porter detail the relationships of naturalism to the increasingly abstract presentation of the material commodity through mass marketing The study culminates with an examination of the parallels between Ernest Hemingway's In Our Time and the D W Griffith film The Birth of a Nation These two modernist works Corkin contends illustrate strategies of expression that attempt to move the material commodity away from its economic base and into a pristine apolitical realm These literary and cinematic works both reflect and participate in the economic political and social reorganization of American life from the top down The result Corkin concludes is a world in which a conception of a human being is asserted as differing little from that of a machine a tree or an animal

The Body in the Reservoir Michael Ayers Trotti, 2010-02-15 Centered on a series of dramatic murders in nineteenth and early twentieth century Richmond Virginia The Body in the Reservoir uses these gripping stories of crime to explore the evolution of sensationalism in southern culture In Richmond as across the nation the embrace of modernity was accompanied by the prodigious growth of mass culture and its accelerating interest in lurid stories of crime and bloodshed But while others have emphasized the importance of the penny press and yellow journalism on the shifting nature of the media and cultural responses to violence Michael Trotti reveals a more gradual and nuanced story of change In addition Richmond's racial makeup one third to one half of the population was African American allows Trotti to challenge assumptions about how black and white media reported the sensational the surprising discrepancies offer insight into just how differently these two communities experienced American justice An engaging look at the connections between culture and violence this book gets to the heart or perhaps the shadowy underbelly of the sensational as the South became modern

George Bellows and Urban America Marianne Doezema, 1992-01-01 George Bellows's spirited and virile paintings of New York in the early decades of the twentieth century celebrated the city's bigness and boldness. Although these works clearly challenged the conservative practices of the National Academy and linked Bellows with the anti-academic art of Robert Henri and the Eight, they were highly popular even with arch-conservatives. In this book, Marianne Doezema explores why it was that Bellows's paintings, despite being considered coarse in technique and subject matter, were acclaimed by critics and patrons by conservatives, progressives, and radicals alike. Doezema focuses on three of Bellows's principal urban themes: the excavation for Pennsylvania Station, prizefights, and tenement life on the Lower East Side. Drawing on journals and periodicals of the period, she discusses how the prominent, often newsworthy motifs painted by Bellows evoked particular associations and meanings for his contemporaries. Arguing that the implicit message of these paintings was distinctly unrevolutionary, she shows that the excavation paintings celebrated industrialization and urbanization; the boxing pictures presented the sport as brutal and its fans as bloodthirsty; and the depictions of the Lower East Side conformed to a moralistic middle-class view of poverty. In many of Bellows's subject pictures of this era, says Doezema, the artist approached issues of changing moral and social values in a way that not only seemed congenial to many members of his audience but also verified their attitudes and preconceptions about urban life in America. American Studies, 1992

American Literary Scholarship American Literary Scholarship, 1989-06 Essayists survey the recent thought and research concerning outstanding authors, trends, and movements in American literature. Models for the Multitudes Karol L. Kelley, 1987-02-17 This provocative study was developed to uncover the thought processes of the best-selling authors from 1850 to 1920 concerning the subject of success. Based on the conviction that the reading of novels strongly influences social values and behavioral expectations, a number of key discoveries are presented regarding character behavior and gender. The variations between the work of female and male writers the similarity of social values employed by widely diverse novelists and the emergence of three distinct time periods related to alterations in gender expectations The book points out the basic assumptions held by popular novelists notes the parameters of human conduct approved by them for their characters and identifies the ideas seen by them as necessary to their work Kelley contends that the coherent pattern of social values uncovered through the use of content analysis suggests that the first mass audience that is the purchasers of best sellers demanded a consensus of ideas in any works that were to sell well and that these can be seen as models for the multitudes

Style and the Scribbling Women Mary P. Hiatt, 1993-01-30 Derogation of nineteenth century women novelists was often the immediate response to their works While modern feminist scholarship has repudiated this view of scribbling women finding much of value in both substance and style in this body of literature many critics and academics remain uninformed and continue to present an almost totally male canon as representative of meritorious writing of this period The present work undertakes an empirical test of stereotypical notions about women s and men s nineteenth century fiction utilizing the computer to examine 80 000 words of running text from passages randomly chosen in twenty novels each by women and men This material is analyzed for occurrences of various aspects of writing style such as similes parallel structures rhetorical devices and certain adverbs and adjectives as well as for sentence length and complexity That these nonimpressionistic findings show no overwhelming gender differences should finally put to rest traditional negative stereotypes about nineteenth century women writers The author of an empirical analysis of twentieth century fiction by men and women Professor Hiatt uses these previous findings for a comparison of twentieth and nineteenth century materials The twentieth century analysis showed greater linguistic and stylistic disparities between men s and women s writing A comparison with the nineteenth century materials indicates that diachronic shifts have occurred much more broadly and drastically in fiction by male authors Carefully documented and written this study will be valuable for researchers and students of women s studies nineteenth century American literature linguistics stylistics and computer applications in the humanities
