Studies in Modern Mass-media: Media and the communication challenge Mohammad Ikram Khan, 1993

Privacy and Publicity Beatriz Colomina, 1996-02-28 Through a series of close readings of two major figures of the modern movement Adolf Loos and Le Corbusier Beatriz Colomina argues that architecture only becomes modern in its engagement with the mass media and that in so doing it radically displaces the traditional sense of space and subjectivity Privacy and Publicity boldly questions certain ideological assumptions underlying the received view of modern architecture and reconsiders the methodology of architectural criticism itself Where conventional criticism portrays modern architecture as a high artistic practice in opposition to mass culture Colomina sees the emerging systems of communication that have come to define twentieth century culture the mass media as the true site within which modern architecture was produced She considers architectural discourse as the intersection of a number of systems of representation such as drawings models photographs books films and advertisements This does not mean abandoning the architectural object the building but rather looking at it in a different way The building is understood here in the same way as all the media that frame it as a mechanism of representation in its own right With modernity the site of architectural production literally moved from the street into photographs films publications and exhibitions a displacement that presupposes a new sense of space one defined by images rather than walls This age of publicity corresponds to a transformation in the status of the private Colomina argues modernity is actually the publicity of the private Modern architecture renegotiates the traditional relationship between public and private in a way that profoundly alters the experience of space In a fascinating intellectual journey Colomina tracks this shift through the modern incarnations of the archive the city fashion war sexuality advertising the window and the museum finally concentrating on the domestic interior that constructs the modern subject it appears merely to house Addicted To Distraction Bruce Charlton, 2014-07-02 For most of us the Mass Media is the focus of our lives it provides the material which is discussed and debated it articulates our responses and it provides the framework by which a vast potential volume of material is filtered prioritised and interpreted

Studies in Modern Mass-media Mohammad Ikram Khan, 1993 MediaMaking Lawrence Grossberg, 2006 Taking a unique approach to the study of mass communication and cultural studies MediaMaking is a volume that presents the current knowledge about the relationship between media culture and society What sets this volume apart from competing texts is the approach taken and the distinguished scholarship Rather than examining each major medium separately newspapers books magazines radio television film the authors contend that mass communication cannot be studied apart from the other institutions in society and the other dimensions of social life each is shaping and defining the other They hold that media can only be understood in relation to their context institutional economic social cultural and historical As such this book explores the variety of ways in which the media are involved in our social lives The authors explore the different relationships between the media and the systems of social value and social differences that organize power in contemporary society They examine how the media are reproduced and consumed and what they produce in turn Theoretically and analytically organized with sections on media's relation to behavior politics media effects the public globalization organizations meaning and ideology this text offers students a more comprehensive understanding of the nature of media communication processes an absolutely necessary part of understanding contemporary life Ebenezer Soola Conference on Communication, 2007
