Transformation of Human Epithelial Cells Molecular and Oncogenetic Mechanisms George E. Milo, Bruce C. Casto, Charles F. Shuler, 1992-02-03 This book offers a conceptual explanation of the interrelationships that exist between the stages in the progression of initiated epithelial cells in culture compared with the diverse tissue of organs and the progression of tumors from different organ sites The fate of the modification of adducts is discussed at the molecular level The role that modifications in hot spots in oncogenes and suppressor genes play at the molecular level and how these molecular modifications can lead to an explanation of molecular control in the formation of tumor phenotypes is also examined Researchers in cell biology and toxicology applied pharmacology carcinogenesis teratogenesis mutagenesis and molecular toxicology will find the book useful interesting reading

Neoplastic Transformation in Human Cell Culture John S. Rhim, Anatoly Dritschilo, 2012-12-06 The role of carcinogenic agents in the development of human cancers is now being defined using a variety of human cells as experimental model systems A workshop on neoplastic transformation in human cell systems in vitro mechanisms of carcinogenesis was held at the Georgetown University Medical Center Washington DC on April 25 26 1991 The aims of the workshop were to present the state of the art in the transformation of human cells in culture as well as to provide insight into the molecular and cellular changes involved in the conversion of normal cells to a neoplastic state of growth The following topics were closely related to the theme of the workshops 1 Derivation of in vitro model systems epithelial fibroblastic and hematopoietic 2 Factors modulating cellular transformation 3 Usefulness of defined in vitro model systems for viral chemical and radiation carcinogenesis 4 Multistep nature of human cell carcinogenesis 5 Role of activated and suppressor oncogenes in neoplastic transformation The workshop was organized by J S Rhim and A Dritschilo cochairsmen G Jay J little M McCormick R Tennant and R R Weischelbaum There were 32 speakers 30 poster presentations and about 190 participants

Encyclopedia of Cancer Manfred Schwab,2011-10-14 The merging of different basic and clinical science disciplines towards the common goal of fighting against cancer has long ago called for the establishment of a comprehensive reference source both as a tool to close the language gap between clinical and basic science investigators and as a platform of information for students and informed laymen alike The Encyclopedia of Cancer provides rapid access to focused information on all topics of cancer research for clinicians research scientists and advanced students Given the overwhelming success of the Second Edition which appeared in 2009 and fast recent development in the different fields of cancer research it has been decided to publish a third fully revised and expanded edition following the principal concept of the first edition that has proven so successful. Recent developments are seeing a dynamic progress in basic and clinical cancer science with translational research increasingly becoming a new paradigm in cancer research. In particular, new approaches to both Personalized Cancer Medicine and Targeted Therapies have made promising progress. While the Second Edition featured scholarly contributions from approximately 1 000 scientists/clinicians in four Volumes, the Third Edition includes 1 300 contributors in 7 Volumes with an A-Z format of approx 7000 entries. It provides definitions of common acronyms and short definitions of related terms and processes in the form of keyword entries. In addition, there are detailed essays which provide comprehensive information on syndromes, genes and molecules and processes and methods. Each essay is well structured with extensive cross referencing between all entries. In the Third Edition, topical Essays present a comprehensive picture of major cancers such as Breast Cancer, Colorectal Cancer, Prostate Cancer, Ovarian Cancer, Renal Cancer, Lung Cancer and Hematological Malignancies, Leukemias and Lymphomas. For each of these cancers, different authoritative Essays are included that cover topics ranging from Pathology to Clinical Oncology and Targeted Therapies. This new feature should meet the expectation that a wide community has towards a major cancer reference work. The Encyclopedia of Cancer will be accessible both in print and online and this information source should be of value to both the clinical and basic scientific community as well as to the public.
