Stewart, C. Vita Finzi, 1993 A fascinating collection of papers that brings together the latest research and theories on the broad range of topics being studied by the world's leading Neotectonic scientists Examining and evaluating both methodological and technical approaches to the study of neotectonics the book analyzes a variety of issues including the interaction between climatic change and the decay and growth of ice sheets during the Quaternary period crustal subsidence recent earth movements at active volcanoes stress fields and Neotectonic hazard mapping      Geomorphology and Global Tectonics Michael A. Summerfield, 2000-04-07 Presents the state of current research on the inter relationships between global tectonics and macroscale landscape development across a wide range of topics and study areas The last 10 years have witnessed a remarkable growth in interest in the relationships between global tectonics and the Earth's macroscale topographic features This new research emphasis has emerged from a range of practitioners within the earth sciences including geophysicists concerned with what can be learnt about tectonic processes from their topographic effects geologists interested in the factors controlling erosion and the supply of material to sedimentary basins and geomorphologists wanting to understand the role of tectonics in landscape evolution Various technical developments and new sources of data have also contributed to these developments such as the construction of coupled tectonic surface process numerical models of large scale landscape development the creation of large area high resolution digital elevation models and the derivation of long term denudational records using methods such as thermochronology This book presents an overview of innovative research in the area and provides directions for future research Each chapter provides up to date surveys of key research questions reports on important current work and highlights outstanding research issues It will be invaluable to those across the earth science community who are interested in the relationships between tectonics and geography      Annales de géomorphologie Andreas Aigner, Josef Stini, Hans Mortensen, 1994      Neotectonics of Maine Walter A. Neotectonics and Quaternary Fault-reactivation in Europe's Intraplate Lithosphere Sierd Cloetingh, T. G. M. Cornu, 2005 The EU funded interdisciplinary Environmental Tectonics research program ENTEC has led to new insights into the strength distribution of Europe's intraplate lithosphere and its relationship with the localization of intraplate deformation and associated vertical motions Pronounced lateral variations in Europe's intraplate strength occur as a result of recent thermal perturbation in the underlying mantle and inherited inhomogeneity in lithospheric structures as a result of Europe's polyphase pre Quaternary evolution Results are presented from quantitative subsidence analysis studies and constraints by geothermochronology pointing to pronounced acceleration in differential vertical motions and associated topography development in intraplate Europe These results demonstrate the vulnerability of Europe s lithosphere to neotectonic activity documented by detailed studies in the three natural laboratories of the ENTEC program 1 the Lower Rhine Graben LRG 2 the Upper Rhine Graben URG and 3 the Vienna Basin VB
