Monumental Landscapes:

Approaches to Monumental Landscapes of the Ancient Maya

Brett A. Houk, Barbara Arroyo, Terry G. Powis, 2019-12-11 This volume brings together a wide spectrum of new approaches to ancient Maya studies in an innovative exploration of how the Preclassic and Classic Maya shaped their world. Moving beyond the towering temples and palaces typically associated with the Maya civilization, contributors present unconventional examples of monumental Maya landscapes. Featuring studies from across the central Maya lowlands, Belize and the northern and central Maya highlands and spanning over 10,000 years of human occupation in the region, these chapters show how the word 'monumental' can be used to describe natural and constructed landscapes, political and economic landscapes and ritual and sacred landscapes. Examples include a massive system of aqueducts and canals at the Kaminaljuyu site; a vast arena designed for public spectacle at Chan Chich; and even the complex realms of Maya cosmology as represented by the ritual cave at Las Cuevas. By including physical, conceptual and symbolic ways, monumentality pervaded ancient Maya culture. This volume broadens traditional understandings of how the Maya interacted with their environment and provides exciting analytical perspectives to guide future study. A volume in the series Maya Studies, edited by Diane Z. Chase and Arlen F. Chase.

The Monumental Earthworks of Palau, Micronesia

Sarah Phear, 2007 This work applies a landscape archaeological perspective to an investigation of the monumental earthworks of Babeldaob in Palau, Micronesia.

The specific perspective employed considers both cultural and environmental concerns of landscape theory. Although it is focused on the monumental earthworks, those cultural remains are viewed as but one cultural unit within the history of the settled landscape of Palau.

Therefore, emphasis is placed on elucidating the context's social and environmental factors that led to the construction of these monumental structures and these places, and the study attempts to view elements of the cultural context from an emic perspective. Once the theoretical and methodological framework has been laid out, the work proceeds through a description of the physical characteristics and archaeological sequence of the archipelago, details of excavations, clay analysis, pollen and phytolith analyses, and an ethnographic pottery study before gathering the results into a final discussion situated in that theoretical framework.

Monumental Landscapes of Li Huayi

Li Huayi, Michael Knight, 2004 The work of twentieth-century Chinese women artists is now coming into focus, writes Asian Art Museum director Emily Sano in her preface to this book, illuminating many remarkable stories of talent, resilience and will. One of those stories is that of Fang Zhaoling. This catalogue of an exhibition of her paintings at the Asian Art Museum of San Francisco from October 1 to November 13 2005 sheds needed light on her long career during which she has consistently produced innovative work of charm and distinction Fang Zhaoling was educated in the techniques of traditional Chinese painting. It is a testament to her determination and her family's foresight that this was so for such an education was uncommon for women of her generation. She continued throughout her life to form important associations and collaborations with leading Chinese painters and she has played an integral role in the history of modern Chinese painting. Park and Cemetery and Landscape Gardening, 1906 Prehistoric Journeys Vicki Cummings, Robert Johnston, 2007 This collection of thirteen papers focuses on what it meant to be on the move at different times in prehistory. Ideas of journeys and travel are integral to many traditions of interpreting the prehistoric archaeological record. Travel was after all the driving force behind the formation and transformation of identity. How ironic it is that this feature of prehistory has been so overlooked when the ancient world's discovery in the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Centuries occurred primarily as the result of travel. The contributors to this volume see journeys as an integral part of prehistoric life socially meaningful which must be understood within their prehistoric contexts.
