More News From Lake Wobegon Faith:

Cheering for Self James S. Vass Jr, James Vass Jr, 2003-05-13 This book is a study of UW men's basketball fans during the 2001-2002 season and explores their proclivity to cheering for self during basketball events. The term basketball event is used rather than basketball game to make clear that everything connected to and seen, heard or experienced before, during and after a basketball game is included. The actual game itself is only part of the basketball event. An undercurrent runs throughout this participant observation mini ethnography dealing with access and the relative quality of that access to basketball events being affected by one's age, class, race and gender. The prominent role of advertising in shaping basketball events and helping to construct fans as consumers of products both commercial and institutional during the process of cheering for self is central to this idea. Cheering for self is the activity engaged in by individual fans after they find things to identify or connect with through personal investment. Fans cheer for self indirectly. Fans cheer for the team that they identify with. Through the process of cheering for self while attending the basketball event, people are taught how to become fans, to consume a UW product, the basketball event and to consume advertisers' products. People have a tendency to spend their entire life trying to impress others. Words on Cassette, 2002 R R Bowker Publishing, 2002 Books Out Loud, 2004

Emerging Geographies of Belief Catherine Brace, 2010-10-12 This interdisciplinary book presents new research from international scholars that explores questions of belief, faith and religion. Focusing on theoretically informed cultural, geographical and historical analyses of faith, belief, religion, society and space, the book presents new and revised theoretical approaches and methodologies grounded in rigorous empirical research both contemporary and historical. The volume takes a deliberately eclectic approach reflecting the complex interactions of the political and poetic dimensions of sacredness in contemporary societies. Taking this research agenda forward, this book explores how religious beliefs inform and construct social identities, public knowledge and modes of governance. In particular, the book meets an urgent need for a critical understanding of how terms such as religion, faith, fundamentalism and secularism, for example, inform public debates and foster constructive engagements both between faith groups and between people of faith and people of no faith. The essays in Emerging Geographies of Belief also show that religion cannot be mapped neatly onto faith or belief. We attempt to tease out the different circumstances in which, for example, belief can operate without religious adherence or faith can inspire social action in geographies of hope. The geography of the title relates to an overarching concern with space and spatiality rather than describing a single disciplinary approach. Our concern with belief, faith and religion operates at different temporal and spatial scales in different localities from the contemporary appeal to a more global sense of responsibility to a historically situated account of faith-led educational practices. This reflects more generally the so-called spatial turn in the social sciences and humanities. But despite this wide historical and geographical sweep, the authors share some key concerns. This collection is unique in combining theoretical, conceptual and discursive approaches to the emerging geographies of belief with substantive examples of the intersection of belief faith and religion with aspects of everyday life Discussions of the potential subversive and prophetic capacities of faith belief and religion sit alongside consideration of how these have become implicated in the spaces and performances of hope It provides a critique of the situationist and substantive approaches to religion along with insights into the role of faith in education community and social work It considers the practices of remembrance representation and pilgrimage and the place of religion in contemporary identity politics In sum the book problematises the seemingly simple categories of faith religion and belief calling attention to how these are mobilised and implicated differently in different circumstances In addressing these themes the book provides a key theoretical resource but crucially goes on to show how multiple perspectives on belief however defined can be applied in practice Whilst there has been much contemporary work on the individual areas covered by the book they have not been brought together before to provide a dynamic insight into issues of the most pressing relevance The Answer to Bad Religion Is Not No Religion

Martin Thielen, 2014-02-14 If you think the only logical response to bad Christianity is to leave Christianity completely this book is for you In an effort to help those who've been hurt by or turned off by negative religion Martin Thielen explains that there is an alternative to abandoning religion good religion Thielen uses personal stories to illustrate the dangers of religion that is judgmental anti intellectual and legalistic While addressing the growth of the new atheism movement and the Nones people that have no religious affiliation this book argues that leaving religion is not practical not helpful and not necessary Thielen provides counterparts to the characteristics of bad religion explaining that good religion is grace filled promotes love and forgiveness and is inclusive and hope filled Perfect for individual group or congregational study a Leader's Guide and a Worship and Outreach Kit are also available to further the discussion and increase community involvement Words on Cassette, 1999 Bowker Editorial Staff, Staff Bowker R R, Bowker, 1999-02 Women's Studies in Communication, 1992 the Urban Environment* Richard Bohannon,2012-04-26 Nature and the city have most often functioned as opposites within Western culture a dichotomy that has been reinforced and sometimes challenged by religious images Bohannon argues here that cities and natural environments however are both connected and continually affected by one another He shows how such connections become overt during natural disasters which disrupt the narratives people use to make sense of the world including especially religious narratives and make them more visible This book offers both a theoretical exploration of the intersection of the city nature and religion as well as a sociological analysis of the 1997 flood in Grand Forks ND USA This case study shows how religious factors have influenced how the relationship between nature and the city is perceived and in particular have helped to justify the urban control of nature The narratives found in Grand Forks also reveal a broader understanding of the nature of Western cities highlighting the potent and ethically rich intersections between religion cities and nature On Cassette ,1990 Audio Video Review Digest ,1990 American Studies in Scandinavia ,2001
