Nitric Oxide Protocols:

Nitric Oxide Protocols M. A Titheradge, 2008-02-05 Michael Titheradge provides both the experienced researcher and the newcomer with time tested techniques to cover all aspects of NO synthase and metabolism Topics range from the cloning and expression of the different isoforms of NO synthase to the role of NO in DNA damage and apoptosis and include indirect and direct measurements of NO production measurement on NO synthase mRNA both in situ and in vitro and Western blotting and immunohistochemical localization of different isoforms of NO synthase A variety of alternative techniques are described to enable researchers to set up an assay using either the simplest equipment or the most expensive EPR machines

Flavoprotein Protocols Steven K. Chapman, Graeme A. Reid, 2008-02-03 As a scientist with an interest in proteins you will at some time in your career isolate an enzyme that turns out to be yellow or perhaps you already have Alternatively you may identify a polypeptide sequence that is related to known flavin containing proteins This may or may not be your first encounter with flavoproteins However even if you are an old hand in the field you may not have exploited the full range of experimental approaches applicable to the study of flavoproteins We hope that Flavoprotein Protocols will encourage you to do so In this volume we have sought to bring together a range of experimental methods of value to researchers with an interest in flavoproteins whether or not these researchers have experience in this area A broad range of techniques from the everyday to the more specialized is described by scientists who are experts in their fields and who have extensive practical experience with flavoproteins The wide range of approaches from wet chemistry to dry computation has as a consequence demanded a range of formats Where appropriate particularly for analytical methods the protocol described is laid out in easy to follow steps In other cases e g the more advanced spectroscopies and computational methods it is far more apt to describe the general approach and relevance of the methods We hope this wide ranging approach will sow the seeds of many future collaborations between laboratories and further our knowledge and understanding of how flavoproteins work

Transportation Institute Environmental and Emissions Research Facility EERF Plants and soil were subjected to heavy duty truck emissions over a six week period Samples were analyzed for changes in carbon and nitrogen content over time Due to the plant injury that occurred during testing the sequestration capabilities of these plant materials and soils were inconclusive A comparison of samples taken over the course of the study indicated that the desired results may have been accomplished had the initial exposure in the EERF been reduced to a more moderate level Modifications to this technique for future research on specific soils and plant materials may help identify plant and soil combinations to maximize roadside carbon sequestration
