No Not Bloomsbury:

No, Not Bloomsbury Malcolm Bradbury, 1988 This first volume of Bradbury's collected critical writings concentrates on British fiction since 1945. It is written from the center of the field; it surveys Bradbury as a writer who is also a critic, a critic who is also a writer. He often feels a conflict between the two roles but writes in a personal, lucid, and amusing style, alert to modern critical theory yet at the same time deeply involved as a creative novelist.

Father and Son Gavin Keulks, 2004-12-27

An innovative study of two of England's most popular, controversial, and influential writers, Father and Son breaks new ground in examining the relationship between Kingsley Amis and his son, Martin Amis. Through intertextual readings of their essays and novels, Gavin Keulks examines how the Amises work to negotiate the boundaries of their personal relationship while claiming territory in the literary debate between mimesis and modernist aesthetics. There was a battle over the nature of reality itself a twentieth century realism war conducted by loving family members and rival antithetical writers. Keulks argues that the Amises relationship functioned as a source of literary inspiration and that their work illuminates many of the structural and stylistic shifts that have characterized the British novel since 1950.
