Nature, Landscape, and Building for

Sustainability William S. Saunders, 2008 The complexity and scale of the environmental problems confronting humanity today provoke a wide range of responses from indifference to anger to creativity. Among a growing number of architects, landscape architects and planners however these problems have inspired a new vision sustainability to guide their practices. In Nature Landscape and Building for Sustainability a diverse group of contributors considers the concept of sustainability both philosophically and practically. Some take a broad view of the divisions between nature and humanity exploring the incomprehensible scale of human intervention in the natural world the relationship between how we feel about nature and what we do about it and the commodification of the natural world. Other essays focus on sustainable design practices sustainability's roots in the American conservation tradition its utility as a framework for future design practice and the necessity of moving beyond demonstration projects into the mainstream. Together these essays suggest that the gap between the promise and reality of sustainable design although significant can be bridged through diligence and practice. Contributors: D.
