Mining The Environment And Indigenous Development Conflicts:

Mining, the Environment, and Indigenous Development Conflicts Saleem H. Ali,2009-08-01 From sun baked Black Mesa to the icy coast of Labrador native lands for decades have endured mining ventures that have only lately been subject to environmental laws and a recognition of treaty rights Yet conflicts surrounding mining development and indigenous peoples continue to challenge policy makers This book gets to the heart of resource conflicts and environmental impact assessment by asking why indigenous communities support environmental causes in some cases of mining development but not in others Saleem Ali examines environmental conflicts between mining companies and indigenous communities and with rare objectivity offers a comparative study of the factors leading to those conflicts Mining the Environment and Indigenous Development Conflicts presents four cases from the United States and Canada the Navajos and Hopis with Peabody Coal in Arizona the Chippewas with the Crandon Mine proposal in Wisconsin the Chipewyan Inuits D n and Cree with Cameco in Saskatchewan and the Innu and Inuits with Inco in Labrador These cases exemplify different historical relationships with government and industry and provide an instance of high and low levels of Native resistance in each country Through these cases Ali analyzes why and under what circumstances tribes agree to negotiated mining agreements on their lands and why some negotiations are successful and others not Ali challenges conventional theories of conflict based on economic or environmental cost benefit analysis which do not fully capture the dynamics of resistance He proposes that the underlying issue has less to do with environmental concerns than with sovereignty which often complicates relationships between tribes and environmental organizations Activist groups he observes fail to understand such tribal concerns and often have problems working with tribes on issues where they may presume a common environmental interest This book goes beyond popular perceptions of environmentalism to provide a detailed picture of how and when the concerns of industry society and tribal governments may converge and when they conflict As demands for domestic energy exploration increase it offers clear guidance for such endeavors when native lands are involved

Mining, the Environment, and Indigenous Development Conflicts Saleem H. Ali,2021-10-19 From sun baked Black Mesa to the icy coast of Labrador native lands for decades have endured mining ventures that have only lately been subject to environmental laws and a recognition of treaty rights Yet conflicts surrounding mining development and indigenous peoples continue to challenge policy makers This book gets to the heart of resource conflicts and environmental impact assessment by asking why indigenous communities support environmental causes in some cases of mining development but not in others Saleem Ali examines environmental conflicts between mining companies and indigenous communities and with rare objectivity offers a comparative study of the factors leading to those conflicts Mining the Environment and Indigenous Development Conflicts presents four cases from the United States and Canada the Navajos and Hopis with Peabody Coal in Arizona the Chippewas with the Crandon Mine proposal in Wisconsin the Chipewyan Inuits D n and Cree with Cameco in Saskatchewan and the Innu and Inuits with Inco in Labrador

These cases exemplify different historical relationships with government and industry and provide an instance of high and low levels of Native resistance in each country. Through these cases Ali analyzes why and under what circumstances tribes agree to negotiated mining agreements on their lands and why some negotiations are successful and others not. Ali challenges conventional theories of conflict based on economic or environmental cost benefit analysis which do not fully capture the dynamics of resistance. He proposes that the underlying issue has less to do with environmental concerns than with sovereignty which often complicates relationships between tribes and environmental organizations. Activist groups he observes fail to understand such tribal concerns and often have problems working with tribes on issues where they may presume a common environmental interest. This book goes beyond popular perceptions of environmentalism to provide a detailed picture of how and when the concerns of industry, society and tribal governments may converge and when they conflict. As demands for domestic energy exploration increase it offers clear guidance for such endeavors when native lands are involved.

International Environmental Law and the Global South Shawkat Alam, Sumudu Atapattu, Carmen G. Gonzalez, Jona Razzaque, 2015-09-17. Situating the global poverty divide as an outgrowth of European imperialism this book investigates current global divisions on environmental policy.

A Political Ecology of Women, Water and Global Environmental Change Stephanie Buechler, Anne-Marie Hanson, 2015-03-02. This edited volume explores how a feminist political ecology framework can bring fresh insights to the study of rural and urban livelihoods dependent on vulnerable rivers, lakes, watersheds, wetlands and coastal environments. Bringing together political ecologists and feminist scholars from multiple disciplines the book develops solution oriented advances to theory, policy and planning to tackle the complexity of these global environmental changes. Using applied research on the contemporary management of groundwater, springs, rivers, lakes, watersheds and coastal wetlands in Central and South Asia, Northern Central and Southern Africa and South and North America the authors draw on a variety of methodological perspectives and new theoretical approaches to demonstrate the importance of considering multiple layers of social difference as produced by and central to the effective governance and local management of water resources. This unique collection employs a unifying feminist political ecology framework that emphasizes the ways that gender interacts with other social and geographical locations of water resource users. In doing so the book further questions the normative gender discourses that underlie policies and practices surrounding rural and urban water management and climate change, water pollution, large scale development and dams, water for crop and livestock production and processing, resource knowledge and expertise and critical livelihood studies. This book will be of interest to students and scholars of environmental studies, development studies, feminist and environmental geography, anthropology, sociology, environmental philosophy, public policy planning, media studies, Latin American and other area studies, as well as women's and gender studies.
