Mismatch The Growing Gulf Between Women And Men:

Mismatch Andrew Hacker, 2007-07-27 After tackling the sensitive issues of race and wealth bestselling author Andrew Hacker now turns his authoritative analysis to a topic on which almost everyone has an opinion the relationship between the sexes Skillfully employing a wide range of new and startling statistics he finds a gender divide that is only getting wider with devastating consequences for family life and personal happiness Whether measured by quantity or quality marriages are weaker and briefer than at any time since this nation began Gone are the days when men and women happily assumed the complementary roles of provider and caretaker Today's women are unwilling to truncate their goals to make life congenial for men instead they are competing for and often winning places once thought of as solely male preserves At the same time fewer men can satisfy the expectations modern women have for their dates and mates What does this mean for the future of intimate relationships Andrew Hacker probes statistics on divorce and parenthood to explain why more women are initiating divorce and why so many are raising children alone or choosing to forgo motherhood altogether He notes that more men are skipping college just as more women are entering and succeeding at careers once dominated by men But even as women make great strides in the workplace double standards and glass ceilings persist suggesting continuing and new forms of hostility and discrimination Hacker also confronts the troubling question of why in a civilized nation rape and assault against women remain widespread and why men and women are opposed on fundamental issues such as gun control and abortion Perhaps most provocatively he makes the prediction that the social patterns of white Americans are beginning to mirror those of blacks yet another result of the growing gender divide Sure to incite discussion and debate Mismatch is an important defining book from the political scientist known for doing with statistics what Fred Astaire did with hats canes and chairs Newsweek

Morris,2009-02-18 A humorous hard hitting look behind the scenes of academic sexism The New York Times Index ,2003 The Art of Marriage Maintenance Sylvia R. Karasu,Toksoz Byram Karasu,2005 Given the fact that 50% of marriages end in divorce you would think marriage wouldn't be so popular but getting married is one of the most popular of all life events In fact many new couples are willing to face considerable debt for the wedding ceremony alone It seems that many people spend more time on planning the wedding than on thinking about marriage and what it entails The Art of Marriage Maintenance is about marital life after the wedding It is about psychological and biological difficulties between men and women that make marriage so challenging It is about why passion is in danger of fading within marriage how hormones exacerbate behavior and how the brain confounds us It is about how pregnancy and having young children and adolescents often catapult a marriage to its breaking point and how the stresses of mid life contribute to marital discord It is in effect how to ensure a happy enduring marriage It is the art of marriage maintenance
