Mirror For The Church Preaching In The First Five Centuries:

A Mirror for the Church David Dunn-Wilson, 2005 It might be assumed that Christian preachers have always proclaimed the same unchanging message in the same unchanging way to similarly comprised and receptive congregations But this assumption is far from accurate Throughout history the style and subject matter of sermons have repeatedly changed to meet the shifting needs of congregations molded by contemporary events A Mirror for the Church explores this dynamic as it developed in the early church In examining sermons preached during the first five centuries of church history David Dunn Wilson answers some important questions Who were the first preachers What did they preach about and what methods did they use What kinds of people made up the first congregations and how did they relate to the world around them In the process Dunn Wilson uncovers the homiletic themes that remained constant in early church history and shows how preachers and their churches adapted to waves of social change He also suggests ways in which the priorities of the early church might inform preaching and Christian practice today Reading Religions in the Ancient World David Edward Aune, Robin Darling Young, 2007 In Reading Religions in the Ancient World sixteen colleagues and students of Robert M Grant honor their colleague friend and mentor with essays on Classical Studies New Testament Studies and Patristic Studies These three areas of study signal the breadth and depth of Professor Grant's own scholarly interests and productivity

Rhetoric and Scripture in Augustine's Homiletic Strategy Michael Glowasky, 2020-12-15 In Rhetoric and Scripture in Augustine's Homiletic Strategy Michael Glowasky offers an account of how Augustine's pastoral concerns shape the rhetorical strategy in his Sermones ad populum While it has been widely recognized that Augustine draws on classical rhetoric in his sermons how his use of rhetoric in his Sermones relates to his pastoral theology has yet to be addressed Through careful examination of Augustine's preaching practice this book provides the most comprehensive account of Augustine's homiletic strategy in his Sermones to date As such it helps us better appreciate the value of the Sermones ad populum as a work in its own right while at the same time advancing our understanding of Augustine as a preacher teacher and pastor

Preaching Christology in the Roman Near East Philip Michael Forness, 2018-10-25 Preaching formed one of the primary regular avenues of communication between ecclesiastical elites and a wide range of society Clergy used homilies to spread knowledge of complex theological debates prevalent in late antique Christian discourse Some sermons even offer glimpses into the locations in which communities gathered to hear orators preach Although homilies survive in greater number than most other types of literature most do not specify the setting of their initial delivery dating and authorship Preaching Christology in the Roman Near East addresses how we can best contextualize sermons devoid of such information The first chapter develops a methodology for approaching homilies that draws on a broader understanding of audience as both the physical audience and the readership of sermons The remaining chapters offer a case study on the renowned Syriac preacher Jacob of Serugh c 451-521 whose metrical homilies form one of the largest sermon collections in any language from late antiquity His letters connect him to a previously little known Christological debate over the language of the miracles and sufferings of Christ through his correspondence with a monastery a Roman military officer and a Christian community in South Arabia He uses this language in homilies on the Council of Chalcedon on Christian doctrine and on biblical exegesis An analysis of these sermons demonstrates that he communicated miaphysite Christology to both elite reading communities as well as ordinary audiences Philip Michael Forness provides a new methodology for working with late antique sermons and discloses the range of society that received complex theological teachings through preaching
