Sanderson,2000 The World's History and Its Makers, Vol. 4 (Classic Reprint) Edgar Sanderson,2015-09-27 Excerpt from The World s History and Its Makers Vol 4 It is the purpose of this volume to sketch briefly the lives and doctrines of those men who have been most eminent in that field of thought which is described generally by the word philosophy There is some difficulty when the subject is treated historically in separating philosophy from science on the one hand and from theology on the other For in the early growth and development of human knowledge these three instruments of progress are so intertwined and interdependent have such closely related causal connections and are made one at least functionally by next which cannot be severed without fatality to all that we are perforce required to take account of all when examining each But while this is without doubt true it is by no means impossible to follow the stream of speculative thought through the centuries recognizing its scientific aspects when such aspects are present and not disregarding its theological significance when it seems to disappear in theology Inasmuch as these sketches shall be biographical mainly no attempt will be made at an exposition of doctrines in any manner adequate for the purposes of a history of philosophy That field has been well tilled if not too well tilled already About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections
