Making A Middle Landscape:

Making a Middle Landscape Peter G. Rowe, 1991 Today's suburban metropolitan development of single family homes shopping centers corporate offices and roadway systems constitute what Peter Rowe calls a middle landscape between the city and the country Looking closely at suburban America in terms of design and physical planning Rowe builds a case for a new way of seeing and building suburbia complete with theoretical underpinnings and a basis for design Making a Middle Landscape Peter G. Rowe, 1991 While others have written about this phenomenon from the point of view of sociology or cultural geography Rowe looks closely at suburban America in terms of design and physical planning Landscape and Utopia Jody Beck, 2022-12-22 This book examines three landmark utopian visions central to 20th century landscape architectural planning and architectural theory The period between the 1890s and the 1940s was a fertile time for utopian thinking Significant geographic shifts of large populations radically altered relations between capital and labor rapid technological developments large investments in transportation and energy infrastructure and repetitive economic disruptions motivated many individuals to wholly reimagine society including the connections between social relations and the built environment Landscape and Utopia examines the role of landscapes in the political imaginations of the Garden City the Radiant City and Broadacre City Each project uses landscapes to propose a reconstruction of the relationships between land labor and capital but while the projects are well known the role played by landscapes has been largely left unexamined Similarly the radical anti capitalism that underpinned each project has similarly been for the most part left out of contemporary discussions This book sets these projects within a historical and philosophical context and opens a discussion on the role of landscapes in society today This book will be a must read for instructors students and researchers of the history and theory of landscape architecture planning and architecture as well as utopian studies cultural and social history and environmental theory The Changing Landscape of Work and Family in the American Middle Class Elizabeth Rudd, Lara Descartes, 2008-03-14 This collection explores the dynamics of the modern middle class American family and its near constant state of transition The editors introduce the book by situating it within the context of work family and ethnographic research on middle class families in the United States Emerging and established scholars contributed chapters based on their original field research following each chapter with a personal reflection on doing field work The volume concludes with an original essay by Kathryn Dudley an anthropologist who has spent decades studying the intersections of work family and class in American culture As a whole the volume highlights how culture shapes family life amid shifting social and economic landscapes The authors working in the fields of anthropology and sociology observed daily life at workplaces and in homes interviewing people about their work their children and their ideas about what makes a good family They report on their fieldwork in essays rich with the detail of everyday life revealing the fascinating diversity of American middle class families through chapters about gay co father families African American stay at home mothers first time fathers
