MAKING MODERN SCIENCE BOWLER AND MORUS, 2021      The Making of Modern Science David Knight, 2013-04-26
Of all the inventions of the nineteenth century the scientist is one of the most striking In revolutionary France the science student taught by men active in research was born and a generation later the graduate student doing a PhD emerged in Germany In 1833 the word scientist was coined forty years later science increasingly specialised was becoming a profession Men of science rivalled clerics and critics as sages they were honoured as national treasures and buried in state funerals Their new ideas invigorated the life of the mind Peripatetic congresses great exhibitions museums technical colleges and laboratories blossomed and new industries based on chemistry and electricity brought prosperity and power economic and military Eighteenth century steam engines preceded understanding of the physics underlying them but electric telegraphs and motors were applied science based upon painstaking interpretation of nature The ideas discoveries and inventions of scientists transformed the world lives were longer and healthier cities and empires grew societies became urban rather than agrarian the local became global And by the opening years of the twentieth century science was spreading beyond Europe and North America and women were beginning to be visible in the ranks of scientists Bringing together the people events and discoveries of this exciting period into a lively narrative this book will be essential reading both for students of the history of science and for anyone interested in the foundations of the world as we know it today      The Birth of Modern Science Paolo Rossi, 2001-06-08 This history of the birth of modern science shatters the illusion that science is dry and divorced from culture by exploring the powerful clashes between traditions and value systems that gave rise to it The author shows how many of the characteristics that distinguish science today emerged in the midst of the wars and plagues of the seventeenth century and defines what was new about this form of knowledge Domesticity in the Making of Modern Science Donald L. Opitz, Staffan Bergwik, Brigitte Van Tiggelen, 2016-01-26

The history of the modern sciences has long overlooked the significance of domesticity as a physical social and symbolic force in the shaping of knowledge production This book provides a welcome reorientation to our understanding of the making of the modern sciences globally by emphasizing the centrality of domesticity in diverse scientific enterprises Multicivilizational Exchanges in the Making of Modern Science Arun Bala, Raymond W. K. Lau, Jianjun Mei, 2024-09-09

This book explores how and why exchanges across civilizations have come to enrich science today The dialogical dimension of the history of science has long been marginalized by an excessive concern on why modern science emerged in Europe but not in any of the advanced civilizations of the East This focus upon what has been called Joseph Needham s Grand Comparative Question ignores his other project focused on showing how dialogues between civilizations have nurtured science Needham s Grand Dialogical Question if we may call it that by parity has directly or indirectly inspired a vast body of literature showing how interconnections of civilizations over the last three thousand years and exchanges of cosmological mathematical geographical physical biological and medical technologies techniques practices and knowledge have been woven together to produce current science Bringing together scholars whose research range across multiple civilizations and disciplines this book investigates the scope and limits of Needham s dialogical vision for science Unani Medicine in the Making Kira Schmidt-Stiedenroth, 2025-10-01

Unani Medicine in the Making examines the institutions and practices of Unani medicine the Graeco Islamic healing practice based on the humoral theory attributed to Hippocrates and officially recognized as a system of medicine in India Drawing on diverse materials including Urdu sources interviews with practitioners and observations in clinics the book explores what Unani medicine is today by attending to its multiplicity scrutinizing apparent tensions between the understanding of Unani as a system of medicine and its multiple enactments as Islamic medicine medical science or alternative medicine Ethnographic details provide vivid descriptions of the current practice of Unani in India and invite readers to rethink the idea that humoral medicine is incommensurable with modern medicine and science and that the modernization of Asian medicines invariably leads to their biomedicalization Ultimately the book also discusses the relationship of Unani with Muslim communities examining the growing practice of Prophetic Medicine in Urban India and increasing representations of Unani as Islamic Medicine After the Monkey Trial Christopher M. Rios, 2014-08-28

This study sheds light on the work of the evangelical scientists who sought to bridge the cultural divide Christianity and evolutionary theory In the well known Scopes Monkey Trial of 1925 famously portrayed in the film and play Inherit the Wind William Jennings Bryan s clashed with defense attorney Clarence Darrow The drama pitting fundamentalist fervor against aggressive agnosticism illustrated what current scholars call the conflict thesis. Regardless of the actual legal question of the trial, it appeared as though Christianity and science were at war with each other. Decades later, a new generation of evangelical scientists struggled to restore peace. After the Monkey Trial is the compelling history of those evangelical scientists in Britain and America who, unlike their fundamentalist cousins, supported mainstream scientific conclusions of the world and resisted the anti-science impulses of the era. Christopher M. Rios focuses on two organizations: the American Scientific Affiliation and the Research Scientists Christian Fellowship, today Christians in Science, who for more than six decades have worked to reshape evangelical engagement with science and redefine what it means to be a creationist.

What is Islamic Studies? Philip Wood, Leif Stenberg, 2022-01-05. The study of Islam and Muslims in Europe and North America has expanded greatly in recent decades, becoming a passionately debated and divided field. This collection critically assesses the development of the field of Islamic Studies and its place in society. Featuring contributions from anthropologists, historians, and scholars of religion, each chapter contains new empirical material and discusses approaches to the study of Islam past and present. The book situates Islamic Studies within broader discussions of the construction of identity and its political implications in Europe and North America. Authors also address tensions between normative and non-normative approaches to the study of Islam and Muslims and consider how these might be reconciled.

How to Make Creamery Butter on the Farm William John McLaughlin, Amanda Kuchenbecker McLaughlin, 1915. Educational Review, 1894.

Nature's Body Londa L. Schiebinger, 2004. Eighteenth-century natural historians created a peculiar and peculiarly durable vision of nature, one that embodied the sexual and racial tensions of that era. When plants were found to reproduce sexually, eighteenth-century botanists ascribed to them passionate relations: polyandrous marriages and suicidal incest. Accounts of steamy plant sex began to infiltrate the botanical literature of the day. Naturalists also turned their attention to the great apes just becoming known to eighteenth-century Europeans, clothing the females in silk vestments and training them to sip tea with the modest demeanor of English matrons, while imagining the males of the species fully capable of ravishing women.

Journal of Education, 1908      The Profession of Home Making, 1911      The Index, 1876      Religion in the Making Samuel George Smith, 1910      Science John Michels (Journalist), 1920
