New Architecture In Britain:

New Architecture in Britain Ken Powell, 2003 Architects increasingly operate on a global scene and just as numerous British architects have proved highly successful at winning projects abroad so architects from Europe the United States and the Far East are making their mark in Britain One thinks for example of Daniel Libeskind's Imperial War Museum and Tadao Ando's new square and pavilion project both in Manchester or of Frank Gehry's Cancer Care Centre in Dundee Well known British practices such as Future Systems Alsop Architects and Nicholas Grimshaw Partners also inevitably feature prominently in the exciting international story of the country's recent architectural renaissance but so too do newer smaller practices including many based outside the capital This book engagingly describes and illustrates over 100 outstanding projects both large and small floor around Britain none completed earlier than 2001 and some still under construction or at planning stage Covering every conceivable building type from houses offices and department stores to theatres heritage sites and museums this book makes a forceful contribution to the continuing debate about the role of architecture in forging a new environment and underpinning the growth of a healthy society The Politics of Architecture Anthony Jackson, 1970-12-15 The history of British architecture since 1930 has been one of frequently heated controversy between the old idiom and the new and between various social and technological viewpoints The battle is by no means over indeed it is spreading to wider issues and outside what was previously a largely professional sphere A book like this one which spells out the issues and describes how they arose is therefore of interest not only to architects and students of architecture but to the growing general public concerned about the man made environment Professor Jackson looks at the buildings of the period as the products of peculiar sets of circumstances as works of art and in terms of what their designers were trying to achieve And since there is much worth studying in the critical zone that separates architectural claims and hopes from social and aesthetic reality this book offers both essential background material and a fascinating narrative that will in itself be a subject of controversy Modern Architecture in England Museum of Modern Art (New York, N.Y.), Henry-Russell Hitchcock, 1969

An Architecture of Parts: Architects, Building Workers and Industrialisation in Britain 1940 - 1970 Christine Wall, 2013-07-04 This book is unique in describing the history of post war reconstruction from an entirely new perspective by focusing on the changing relationship between architects and building workers It considers individual as well as collective interactions with technical change and in doing so brings together for the first time an extraordinary range of sources including technical archives oral history and visual material to describe the construction process both during and in the decades after the war It focuses on the social aspects of production and the changes in working life for architects and building workers with increasing industrialization in particular analysing the effect on the building process of introducing dimensionally co-ordinated components Both architects and building workers have been accused of creating a built environment now popularly discredited architects responsible for poor design and building workers for poor workmanship

However many of the structures and ideas underpinning this period of rapid change were revolutionary in their commitment to a complete transformation of the building process An Architecture of Parts adds to the growing literature on changes in the building world during and immediately after the Second World War It is significant both empirically and historically in its examination of the ideas technology and relationships that fired industrialization of the building process in mid century Britain

A History of Renaissance Architecture in England, 1500-1800 Sir Reginald Theodore Blomfield,1897

Libraries of Light Alistair Black,2016-10-04 For the first hundred years or so of their history public libraries in Britain were built in an array of revivalist architectural styles This backward looking tradition was decisively broken in the 1960s as many new libraries were erected up and down the country In this new Routledge book Alistair Black argues that the architectural modernism of the post war years was symptomatic of the age s spirit of renewal In the 1960s public libraries truly became libraries of light and

Black further explains how this phrase not only describes the shining new library designs with their open plan decluttered Scandinavian inspired designs but also serves as a metaphor for the public library's role as a beacon of social egalitarianism and cultural universalism. A sequel to Books Buildings and Social Engineering 2009 Black's new book takes his fascinating story of the design of British public libraries into the era of architectural modernism. The British Architect, 1915 The Development of the Architectural Profession in Britain Barrington Kaye, 1960 Architecture, 1909 The American Architect and Building News, 1902 A history of architecture in all countries, from the earliest times to... James Fergusson, 1873 The United States Catalog Mary Burnham, Carol Hurd, 1928
