CHEMRAWN I L.E. St-Pierre, G. R. Brown, 2017-09-29 Future Sources of Organic Raw Materials CHEMRAWN I is a collection of lectures presented at the World Conference on Future Sources of Organic Raw Materials held in Toronto Canada on July 10-13, 1978. The conference focused on potential future sources of organic raw materials such as non-conventional fossil hydrocarbons, coal, industrial and agricultural wastes, and renewable resources like wood and other plant materials. This book is comprised of 52 chapters and opens with an assessment of the likely future availability of conventional oil and gas as they relate to possible demands for petrochemical feedstocks, paying particular attention to the availability and demand patterns for fossil hydrocarbons. The following chapters discuss the reserves and worldwide distribution of oil shale and tar sands, climate and its impact on renewable resources, research and management of natural resources, and production of chemicals directly from synthesis gas. Pyrolysis of solid carbonaceous materials is also considered along with natural rubber production and biomass for non-food use. This monograph will be a useful resource for organic chemists and energy policymakers.

A life system is a broad concept covering both micro and macro components, ranging from cells, tissues, and organs across to organisms and ecological niches. To comprehend and predict the complex behavior of even a simple life system can be extremely difficult using conventional approaches. To meet this challenge, a variety of new theories and methodologies have emerged in recent years on life system modeling and simulation Along with improved understanding of the behavior of biological systems novel intelligent computing paradigms and techniques have emerged to handle complicated real world problems and applications In particular intelligent computing approaches have been valuable in the design and development of systems and facilities for achieving sustainable energy and a sustainable environment the two most challenging issues currently facing humanity The two LSMS 2010 and ICSEE 2010 conferences served as an important platform for synergizing these two research streams
