Management Competency for Physical Activity Education and Sport Earle F. Zeigler, Gary W. Bowie, 2007-08-24

The introduction of this combined text and laboratory workbook with its tear out sheets on which to complete specific experiences is a first in the field. It can be employed either by itself or in connection with a standard text that has limited or no practical exercises included. If desirable also the instructor could amplify what is offered here by the addition of other laboratory experiences developed from the listing in Part I of well over 100 desirable experiences under the five broad categories included. A comprehensive analysis of management science literature indicated the need to introduce a step by step plan for management skill or competency attainment. In doing so the authors built on Katz's Harvard tripartite categorization of skills and expanded it to five subdivisions so as to cover also the personal attributes needed by the prospective manager as well as those conjoined skills gained through a combinatorial process that the individual is required to employ on the job. What Katz calls human skills we now call interpersonal skills so as to distinguish this category from personal skills. No 1 below. These subdivisions or categories are therefore as follows: 1 Personal skills or developing one's own individual competencies prior to concentrating on the managerial task; 2 Interpersonal skills or acquiring the skills needed to influence people positively to work toward accomplishment of organizational objectives and goals; 3 Conceptual skills or learning to formulate ideas and plans while on the job as a manager; 4 Technical skills or acquiring the various skills and techniques needed to cope with the various organizational details and problems that arise; 5 Conjoined skills or developing the various managerial skills in some combination or proportion to achieve both immediate and long range objectives and goals. Granting that Katz's categories of human interpersonal as we call it conceptual and technical managerial skills along with our additional subdivisions of so called personal and conjoined skills are not mutually exclusive this plan enables the teacher and the students to move selectively from theory to practice within each of the five categories described. The method for working toward the achievement of the specific competencies or skills is 1 through the provision of statements describing the objectives of the modules used to develop the competencies; 2 to offer knowledge statements introducing the trainee to the theoretic bases of the competencies and their roles and functions in the management process; and 3 by recommending selected laboratory exercises for achieving a degree of success at least based on involvement in a variety of problem solving experiences. After the student comprehends the problem to be met or solved a questioning process determines 1 what needs to be known; 2 where this information may be obtained; 3 how to organize the actual learning experience; 4 what the probable result will be; and 5 how to evaluate the level of competency attainment where such is possible. The teaching and learning process employed by the instructor is designed therefore to include a variety of laboratory experiences. The tear out sheets for each laboratory experience are to be completed and handed in as indicated by the course instructor. In addition to standard lecture and discussion techniques that we assume will be included by the instructor other learning devices available can include use of the case method role playing independent study interaction with a personal computer elementary theory formulation response to questionnaires and self testing devices individual projects small discussion groups etc When the instructor wishes and there is class time available he or she can introduce action or applied research based independent investigation e g survey game theory debates internship experiences panels forums and so forth Basically a fivefold learning process is recommended This process employs three steps 1 understanding of the objective of the learning experience module 2 reading and comprehension of a knowledge statement or lecturette about the particular skill involved and 3 skill learning through analysis and practice Thus the instructor can 1 assess initial student status 2 introduce selected experiences to strengthen areas of possible weakness and subsequently 3 evaluate competency attainment

Management Theory and Practice in Physical Activity Education (Including Athletics)

F. Zeigler Earle F. Zeigler, Earle Zeigler, 2010 A new text in management thought theory and practice applied to physical activity education and athletics required justification Management Theory and Practice in Physical Activity Education Including Athletics has been planned primarily for administrators of physical education and athletics at several levels of educational institutions However much that is included here can be very helpful as well to the sport and physical recreation manager in public and or commercial sport and physical activity In other words it is the underlying thought theory and practice that is fundamentally important The twentieth century has been characterized as a transitional one in human history Moving into the twenty first century we start down the path to finding the answer to this assumption At any rate changing times are occasioned by the impact of a variety of social forces on society Additionally such change has its accompanying but often unsteady influence on the professional training of leaders in the large number of fields that make up the society in which such change occurs The caliber of young people recruited into the field within education is paramount as is the way they are prepared for leadership roles as managers teachers coaches performers supervisors or exercise specialists This is OUR responsibility We should carry out these assignments in a way that is comparable to that used in the finest professions

Management of Sports Development Vassil Girginov, 2009-06-04

Management of Sports Development is the first book to offer a holistic approach to a field which has been growing in importance for some years Although many books exist on various aspects of development never before has there been a text which addresses the process of development in such a comprehensive manner This book offers everything needed to develop an understanding of the process of sports development The book provides comprehensive coverage of the major themes in the process of sports development with contributions from an internationally renowned author team. These themes include models of sports development, funding of sports development, mega sporting events, networks and partnerships in sports development, sports development and social change. It is also supplemented with a dedicated accompanying website featuring updates and extra material. This accessible book is essential reading for students or lecturers in the field of sports development and is set to be a vital contribution to the literature in this area. The Management of Sport Bonnie L. Parkhouse, 1991. Manuel didactique couvrant les bases du management du sport et plus précisément la comptabilité, la finance, le droit, la communication, le management et le marketing. Différents auteurs examinent des domaines d'application ciblés plutôt pour les étudiants. Sensibilité américaine. Through the Eyes of a Concerned Liberal Earle F. Zeigler, 2004-09-23. Through the Eyes of a Concerned Liberal argues that the socio-political position of liberalism is the only one that can get us back on course toward the now vanishing enlightenment ideal. This was the vision of the founding fathers looking to a time when all of the conditions of life social, political, moral and intellectual as well as material would be realized for everyone the American dream. Taking a hard look at the present social political situation in North America Dr Zeigler offers a self evaluation test for the reader to determine his/her socio-political political stance on a spectrum from far right to far left. Other tests serve to evaluate respectively both one's philosophy of life and/or religion and recreational quotient RQ. The United States the author asserts simply does not appreciate that its current imperial status will be sorely tried in the 21st century. The U.S.A. must now prove that its brand of capitalism and democracy one that purports to offer a maximum of individual freedom within a democratic political system is the best approach for the entire world to emulate. However capitalism and ecology have become social forces on a collision course in this evolving cultural matrix. The individual citizen in this setting must be fully informed and must serve actively and responsibly to implement a liberal agenda. The author offers 49 short essays, columns and self evaluation devices that reflect his position. In the final analysis each person should choose a life purpose based on 1 a comprehensive philosophy of life 2 a concurring socio-political stance and 3 a search for the good life in a hopefully free society.
