Management For Research Libraries Cooperation:

Management for Research Libraries Cooperation Sul H. Lee, 2000 Follow the development of the Research Library Project as it changes the way libraries operate The 1990s were a decade of increased institutional cooperation among university research libraries in great part due to spiraling serials costs Management for Research Libraries Cooperation offers a historical summary of the Research Library Project the landmark program begun by the American Association of Universities and joined by the Association of Research Libraries The selection of source documents includes progress reports conference proceedings and panel transcripts This comprehensive book offers an inside look at the Research Library Project its task forces the Global Resources Program and SPARC In addition this useful book delivers sound advice models and strategies for increasing sharing between institutions These suggestions for successful cooperation will allow libraries to maximize the available amount of printed and electronic research material while keeping costs under control Management for Research Libraries Cooperation presents ideas and suggestions for some of the toughest challenges to face librarians today including licensing of copyrighted materials for reproduction and distribution funding intellectual property initiatives the implications of electronic publishing gaining acceptance from research faculty for the new library systems fostering the use of technology to improve scholarly communication establishing new modes of cooperation between academic and research libraries finding successful strategies for handling fast changing scientific and technical information Management for Research Libraries Cooperation is more than a valuable historical collection of documents not readily available elsewhere It offers ideas to make the librarian s job easier in a field that is changing every day Collection Management and Strategic Access to Digital Resources University of Oklahoma Libraries Conference, Sul H. Lee, 2005 Academic libraries have been using electronic resources for several years yet library administrators still find that the evolution from print to digital takes meticulous planning Collection Management and Strategic Access to Digital Resources is a collection of eight presentations from the 2004 University of Oklahoma Libraries Conference focusing on the ways academic research libraries can successfully make the transition from print materials to electronic resources Respected authorities offer effective strategies to efficiently coordinate the use of digital materials in the contemporary research library As acquisition budgets tighten and fresh emphasis is placed upon finding strategies to afford needed resources library administrators find it increasingly difficult to meet the challenge of providing information to today s students and scholars Collection Management and Strategic Access to Digital Resources focuses on innovative practical solutions to difficult problems facing librarians and library administrators today and in the coming decade The book is carefully referenced and includes tables and charts to clearly explain data Collection Management and Strategic Access to Digital Resources presents and thoroughly discusses the impact of digital resources on libraries research and learning in history and science open access of research results beyond the print journal regime Association of Research Libraries ARL and electronic journal subscriptions an introduction to Ithaka

a not for profit organization that acts as an incubator for electronic projects and research for libraries evaluations and innovative alternatives of the rules and beliefs of electronic resource collection the historical and contextual considerations that have made collections cooperation difficult to achieve and a global resources network initiative that may answer the challenge transforming scholarship s role by offering access to the raw material of research offering new opportunities for access to a greater range of information and the responsibilities of research libraries in a rapidly evolving digital world
