Challenges Faced by School Management Teams in Managing Rural Schools in Three Selected Schools in South Africa

Abstract

Background/purpose. Rural schools present unique challenges for School Management Teams, as most learners only attend school occasionally due to cultural obligations and household chores, resulting in low attendance rates. The study aimed to explore the challenges that school management teams faced while managing rural schools, which negatively impacted the quality of teaching and learning.

Materials/methods. This study adopted a case study design and used a qualitative approach. Data were gathered through semi-structured interviews with ten participants.

Results. The study findings revealed a number of challenges that school management teams face while managing rural schools, which negatively impact the quality of teaching and learning. These challenges included a lack of resources, the late coming of learners, the influence of substance abuse, bullying, teenage pregnancy, classroom management, contact workshops, the management of HR (teachers), the lack of parental involvement, the lack of effective communication, staff division and content gaps, and a negative attitude towards schoolwork.

Conclusion. To address the challenges that school management teams face, this study recommends that the Department of Education should ensure that rural schools receive equitable and adequate funding to meet their needs. To improve access to resources, the department can implement targeted funding programmes that address the specific challenges of these school settings. This could include financial support for upgrading the technological infrastructure, providing high-quality educational materials, and securing larger facilities.

Stolzer, John J. Goglia, 2016-03-03 Although aviation is among the safest modes of transportation in the world today, accidents still happen. In order to further reduce accidents and improve safety, proactive approaches must be adopted by the aviation community. The International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) has mandated that all of its member states implement Safety Management System (SMS) programs in their aviation industries. While some countries, the United States, Australia, Canada, members of the European Union, and New Zealand, for example, have been engaged in SMS for a few years, it is still non-existent in many other countries. This unique and comprehensive book has been designed as a textbook for the student of aviation safety and as an invaluable reference tool for the SMS practitioner in any segment of aviation. It discusses the quality management underpinnings of SMS, the four components: risk management, reliability engineering, SMS implementation, and the scientific rigor that must be designed into proactive safety. The authors introduce a hypothetical airline-oriented safety scenario at the beginning of the book and conclude it at the end, engaging the reader and adding interest to the text. To enhance the practical application of the material, the book also features numerous SMS in Practice commentaries by some of the most respected names in aviation safety. In this second edition of Safety Management Systems in Aviation, the authors have extensively updated relevant sections to reflect developments since the original book of 2008. New sections include a brief history of FAA initiatives to establish SMS, data-driven safety studies, developing a system description, SMS in a flight school, and measuring SMS effectiveness. Managing Educational Change Brahm Fleisch, 2002 Professional Development for Educational Management Lesley Kydd, Megan Crawford, Colin R. This has resulted in many modifications in the working of the Boards. Even then, the Boards are facing many challenges. The main challenge before the Boards is that there is a constant threat of knowledge getting obsolete day by day on the other the requirement for updating the existing facilities remains a financial challenge The Boards need to widen the sphere of their operations and increasingly support schools in undertaking innovative activities and in offering high quality education They need to adopt several measures for instance concerning academic guidance and supervision preparation of quality teaching learning material adoption of progressive modes of evaluating students performance training of teachers principals and other personnel and evaluation of the performance of schools affiliated to them In addition revolutionary advancements in communications technology have broken the national boundaries As a consequence globalization has created several avenues and possibilities for educational sector Therefore there is exigency to see how Boards of Secondary Education are prepared for facing these challenges The Boards must think constantly about the ways and means to absorb the changes The present book deals with role of Boards in managing change and quality of Secondary Education in four states of India i e Himachal Pradesh Madhya Pradesh West Bengal and Andhra Pradesh
