Organization Development For Facility Managers:

Organization Development for Facility Managers Stormy Friday, 2003 Organization development is not just a murky high end concept for staff in human resources. In reality it's a set of powerful tools for building and strengthening any department including facilities management. What's more there are certain characteristics that are common to successful and effective FM organizations. Now the well known consultant Stormy Friday has devised an original easy to follow blueprint for applying the best ideas in organization development OD specifically to the FM arena. Put it to use and you'll increase your department's performance, morale and sustainability while equipping you and your staff with the skills and knowledge to make FM a strategic player in fulfilling your company's long term goals. This clearly written book is organized around seven crucial DNA links or building blocks for designing and developing a high performance department. Within each link the author outlines a set of OD skills for you to develop and apply as well as practical tools and techniques and revealing case studies of OD at work in an FM environment Dow Corning Corporation, Adaptec Applied Physics Laboratory and more. The DNA links are:

- 1 Leadership: FM managers often overlook the impact of their leadership on an FM organization. This book helps you focus on the skills you need to create a fully engaged workforce where risk taking, innovation and strategic thinking are everyday occurrences.
- 2 Individuals: Without people you don't have an FM department and you need to know how individuals think, what motivates them and how to use that knowledge to positively influence their behavior. You'll find valuable insights into what makes people tick inside.
- 3 Groups: How do you distribute work to individuals or groups? This book shows you how to make the best decision based on an informed understanding of individual versus group behavior and whether or not group process will effectively accomplish your organization's goals.
- 4 Culture: Corporate culture profoundly influences the development of an FM department and is typically the cement that holds the enterprise together. Learn about the components of culture and how to conscientiously change that culture to build a stronger department.
- 5 Visioning and Strategic Planning: Most FM departments are too focused on their hectic day to day activities to engage in visioning and strategic planning. But stepping back and devising a practical FM action plan will actually reduce the daily frenzy. Find out how to do it inside.
- 6 Structure: Organization structure is a critical DNA linkage. Figuring out the best possible structure for your department is a difficult but essential skill. To simplify the task the author supplies step by step guidelines for choosing the most appropriate structure and the right mix of staff and skills.
- 7 Future: FM organizations need to pay close attention to business trends and activities that could impact their company and department in the future. Learn about the skills necessary to predict changes and challenges that might soon affect your profession. Filled with how to instructions up to the minute research and a broad historical perspective Organization Development for Facility Managers is an important contribution to the field and an essential guide for FM professionals.

Performance Johnny Ch Lok,2021-03-13 McNaughton 2007 says Facilities management provides an opportunity for businesses and large conglomerates to focus on their core business leaving the secondary services of security mailing and cleaning in the hands of the facilities management experts If implemented correctly facilities management can benefit your company in the following ways Reduced risk and increased productivity Reduced operating costs by focusing on core business structures Encourages and sustains a healthy and safe corporate culture Delivers sustainable resource utilisation Optimise asset utilisation How Operational and Strategic Facilities Management Can Improve service Performance Facilities management can be divided into two sections namely operational facilities management and strategic facilities management Operational facilities management is the interaction within the facilities department itself i e the facilities manager and the various functional units such as maintenance interior planning architecture etc The various functional units can be in house or outsourced Each functional unit should be aware of current techniques and regulations within their specific area of work The facilities manger is expected to communicate with the core business regularly to identify current facilities requirements The facilities manager will then benchmark facilities service currently in practice within the organisation against other facilities management organisations and see where an improvement can be made Barrett 1998 It can be said that the primary function of facilities management is the operational side as it is the most visible The function supports the regular needs of the core business Chotipanich 2004 Strategic facilities management looks at the future The facilities manager will interact with the core business to establish future changes that might occur to the business due to external factors such as competitors etc The facilities manager will also identify possible developments within the facilities management arena Interaction between strategic and operational facilities management must occur and the aim is to synergistically balance current operations with the needs of the future Barrett 1998 The structure of facilities management is related to the needs environment and circumstances of the organisation at the time Its practice and composition are particularly important to the characteristics and contexts of the organisation Chotipanich 2004 Barrett 1998 suggests that facility managers should not just select service items from the standard list at random but provide only those services that are needed by their particular organisation Facilities management practice is seen as adapting to its situation Barrett 1998 also stands by the fact that facilities management practice needs to be personalised to a specific organisation The facilities managers are involved in strategic planning i e plans for the future as well as daily operations particularly in relation to buildings and premises Responsibilities and duties may vary depending on the type of corporation but the most likely responsibilities include
