

KOBOLD Lusibifurussaurus Fugivorus

ANIMAL - SUBTERRANEAN GLOWING FUNGIVORE

The most well known species of the subterranean fauna of the new world, also called "fairy-goats", the Kobolds are bipedal reptiles that live in large hive-like groups called flocks, and take shelter in numbers against predators of their alien environment.

They're relatively small animals, reaching a maximum height of approximately 3 feet. What they lack in size, they make up in intelligence and speed.

*Bioluminescent

These curious creatures seem to have developed a mutualistic relationship with a peculiar species of glowing mushrooms, the Sorrowful Bride. They are able to neutralize the fungi's otherwise deadly toxin in their stomach, and make them the main part of their diet. While the mushroom's main body is digested, the spores aren't. Eventually these spores are released and grow new fungi through the animal's feces. The bioluminescent enzymes are somehow redirected to the Kobold's Lumbar Membranes.

Their bioluminescent membranes are used for long distance communication and to temporarily blind predators. In recent observations i could ascertain that these creatures are capable of doing a large range of different patterns and intensities of glowing flashes, which indicates they have a rather complex language for non-sapient beings.

Perhaps the most fascinating aspect of the Kobold species is their hives, were they nest and seek shelter. Often called "castles" or "lighthouses", hundreds of Kobolds work together to raise these magnificent structures from the ground, sticking thousands of stones in place using a cement-like substance they regurgitate. These castles can become so tall that some of them connect the cave's ceiling to the ground.

The Human-Animal Boundary Nandita Batra, Mario Wenning, 2018-11-27 Throughout the centuries philosophers and poets alike have defended an essential difference rather than a porous transition between the human and animal Attempts to assign essential properties to humans e g language reason or morality often reflected ulterior aims to defend a privileged position for humans This book shifts the traditional anthropocentric focus of philosophy and literature by combining the questions What is human and What is animal What makes this collection unique is that it fills a lacuna in critical animal studies and the growing field of ecocriticism It is the first collection that establishes a productive encounter between philosophical perspectives on the human animal boundary and those that draw on fictional literature The objective is to establish a dialogue between those disciplines with the goal of expanding the imaginative scope of human animal relationships The contributions thus do not only trace and deconstruct the boundaries dividing humans and nonhuman animals they also present the reader with alternative perspectives on the porous continuum and surprising reversal of what appears as human and what as nonhuman Monsters Both by Land and Sea Noah Yasskin,2007 A Fantastic
